15 prisoners' breakout plan foiled

ESCAPE FROM ALICE

Zizi Averill

Fifteen prisoners were reportedly busted hiding in the ceiling during a foiled attempt to escape the Alice Springs prison.

United Workers Union NT Secretary Erina Early said the prisoners attempted to escape from Alice Springs Correctional Centre on Boxing Day.

Ms Early said the would-be fugitives used their T-shirts to rip the wiring off the fans, before tearing off the metal sheeting and climbing into the crawl space.

She said the young prisoners were aged between 18 and 20 and were housed in G-Block — the part of the prison used to keep vulnerable people separate from the general prison population.

Violence simmers away in Wadeye

Zizi Averill

A remote Territory town is once again on the edge of chaos with violence in the streets and cars left in flames.

NT Police continue to urge for calm as community unrest flares up in Wadeye, 400km south west of Darwin.

On Tuesday Assistant Commissioner Travis Wurst said police were responding to a month-long escalation in violence in the troubled region.

Mr Wurst confirmed that days of unrest had resulted in significant property damage in Wadeye, with police arresting "key perpetrators" at the centre of the violence.

"I'm aware that, not so much homes, but a number of wrecked vehicles had been set on fire over the last couple of days," Mr Wurst said.

He said the charges ranged from assaults, domestic violence, property damage and attacks on cop cars.

While there have been reports of properties being attacked and people shot with arrows, Mr Wurst said the violence was not expected to escalate to the horrors of 2021 — where an estimated 500 people lost their homes and were forced to flee the town.

"We're working very closely with the community to make sure that people can stay in their community," Mr Wurst said.

Mr Wurst said rolling road-blocks made a "significant safety difference" by intercepting litres of alcohol, however there were still "ongoing challenges" for the community.

Mr Wurst said a multi-agency meeting including community leaders, traditional owners, police and other government departments met on Tuesday to find "sustainable resolutions to that unrest".

But Mr Wurst added that due to the level of violence, police were prepared to "tactically disengage" if they felt at risk.

"We've got to keep the community safe, but if we are hurt ourselves, we can't do anything about that."

He urged Wadeye residents to not damage police cars, as "unfortunately, when you need them, and if you've hurt them, then they're not going to be able to assist you".

How Porkin will get Nightcliff talkin'

Camden Smith

Nightcliff's night-time options just grew by one with popular mixed-business Porkin opening their new bar.

The old Aralia Street grocery has had a significant transformation over the past 12 months and has become a go-to spot for locals at all hours seeking out a tasty coffee, good food and now a refreshing drink and snack after work.

Porkin co-owner Manfred Mletsin said the conversion from local supermarket to mixed-business including grocer, cafe and now local speak-easy would continue in coming years, but the local response to the changes over the past 12 months had been extremely positive.

The shop opens at 7am for breakfast and takeaway lunch purchases — which have proven incredibly popular at the store — and from Thursday to Saturday shuts its doors about 10pm.

Porkin complements the new funky aesthetic at the old Aralia shops.

When the duo secured the business about 18 months ago, Manfred and business partner Ryan Hamilton set about transforming the atmosphere in the neighbourhood.

"Imagine a place where you can meet friends for an amazing coffee, grab a charcuterie board and a good bottle of wine, and later take home bread and milk for the week," Mr Mletsin said.

This initiative began by phasing out commonly found, budget-friendly items, transitioning instead to a curated selection of boutique and local products.

These exclusive offerings, although less widely recognised, come with a premium price tag and cater to a more niche market.

In addition to introducing upscale boutique items, the store remained committed to catering to everyday needs. Essentials like bacon and eggs, a variety of local breads, and milk continue to grace the shelves.

This balanced approach ensures that while customers could indulge in luxury products, they could also find all the fundamental groceries required for their daily routines.

"We're here to fill the gap in the market — the corner store that makes and serves great drinks, premium fresh produce, offers boutique wine and helps you do the last-minute breakfast, dinner or lunch box grocery run," Mr Hamilton said.

Their vision extends to continuing renovations on the shop in coming years including moving the kitchen to the back of the store to create more bar space for patrons and a full-blown deli.

Thousands of people live in the Nightcliff, Rapid Creek, Jingili and Coconut Grove catchment and Mr Mletsin sees plenty of room to grow the business.

NT home prices up but end year down

Outlook bleak for 2024

Talara McHugh

NT home prices saw an increase over the festive season but ended the year below peak, with interstate prices dropping for the first time in a year.

The latest report by the PropTrack Home Price Index saw Darwin prices rise by 0.1 per cent in December despite being the only capital city to record a drop in November, with the rest of NT rising by 0.02 per cent.

Despite the rise, home prices in Darwin were down by 1.49 per cent compared to last year and 2.26 per cent from their May 2022 peak with a median value of $482,000.

Outside of Darwin, Territory home prices were lower by 3.16 per cent than last year and May 2022 with a median value of $421,000.

PropTrack Economist and report author Anne Flaherty said house prices in the new year would depend on interest rates and population growth.

"The outlook is that prices are going to at some point return to those peak levels that have been reached, whether that happens in 2024 or 2025 remains to be seen but it will have a lot to do with what interest rates do, how much demand changes and what kind of population growth we see," she said.

"It's likely we'll see Darwin underperform relative to other markets so we are forecasting that prices could fall over 2024, but having said that, we don't expect big drops so our forecasts are in the region of minus three per cent to zero per cent."

"Population growth in Darwin, for example, hasn't been as strong as in some other places and that's another reason why that market isn't seeing the same level of growth."

She also said higher building costs would continue to slow down the supply of new homes, driving up property prices in the long run.

After peaking in November, capital city home prices fell by a combined 0.09 per cent, marking the first decline in 2023.

Across December, Canberra saw the biggest drop at 0.66 per cent followed by Melbourne at 0.55 per cent, Hobart at 0.41 per cent and Sydney with 0.08 per cent.

Perth and Adelaide continued to record strong growth with prices rising by 0.69 per cent and 0.59 per cent respectively, with prices also up in Brisbane by 0.27 per cent.

On the other hand, regional home prices reached a new peak of 3.2 per cent over 2023 with regional Queensland and South Australia identified as key drivers of growth.

Prime Minister Anthony Albanese.

No cash handouts in cost-of-living considerations

Jessica Wang

While cost-of-living support remains the government's No.1 priority, Anthony Albanese says Australians should not expect cash handouts and sweeteners to relieve the pressure on households.

The Prime Minister said he had asked the Treasury and Department of Finance to devise ideas that could be announced in the May federal budget; however, cash splashes and spending would be curtailed to avoid inflation.

"We asked them to give consideration to what are the measures that can take pressure off families on cost of living without putting pressure on inflation. That's the key issue," he said.

"If you were just to distribute additional cash to people, you potentially make inflation worse and therefore don't help to solve the problem."

As an example, he used the government's Energy Price Relief Plan, which was developed with state and territory governments to introduce price limits on gas and coal.

The NSW and Queensland governments have set a $125-a-tonne price threshold on coal used for electricity generation. A 12-month emergency cap on gas prices has also been set at $12 per gigajoule for east-coast producers. "Instead of giving cheques to people, it reduces their bills substantially and we worked that through with Treasury and finance and it made a substantial difference in a reduction in wholesale prices," he said.

In an effort to soften inflation to a target range between 2 to 3 per cent, the RBA has implemented 13 rate rises since May 2022, with the 4.35 per cent cash rate denting household budgets.

The latest CPI figures from September revealed year-on-year household inflation had reduced to 5.4 per cent after reaching a high of 7.8 per cent in December 2022.

Mr Albanese conceded Australians were still under the pressure caused by international events such as pandemic-related supply chain issues and the "illegal Russian invasion of Ukraine".

'It's similar to prohibition'

How Darwin retailers say they will be impacted by new vaping laws

Harry Brill

Retailers across Darwin believe the nationwide crackdown on vaping will affect Territorians for the worse.

In May last year, the Albanese government announced it would outlaw the importation of non-prescription vaping products from January 1, 2024.

Disposable vapes containing nicotine can still be supplied in Australia in pharmacy settings to a patient with a prescription.

Additionally, disposable vapes not containing nicotine or making therapeutic claims may be supplied by retailers in accordance with state or territory law.

NT News spoke to retailers in Darwin about the new law, which one store manager compared to "prohibition".

"I know for a fact my customers will revert back to smoking cigarettes if they can't get a (vaping) prescription," he said. "If the government was genuinely concerned about people's health, they would have applied the same law to cigarettes and alcohol of 'you can purchase alcohol from the local chemist, but only if you're trying to quit your addiction' - they haven't done that."

"The country has gone from having no real regulation around vaping to introducing this massive ban; it's similar to prohibition." The manager said small businesses would "suffer" from the changes.

"I know (my business) will suffer, and jobs will be on the line over a product that isn't being eliminated - it's just been moved from my shop front to a pharmacy down the road," he said. "With this decision, the government has basically said only some people are allowed to profit from (vaping) but not everyone else."

Another retailer said Territory authorities were "already confused" prior to the rule change.

"I've had health and safety workers come here and not know what it is they're looking at and even asking if we sell pot," he said.

"The new law aside, they were already confused."

In the city, a small business owner said he was "pretty blind" on the situation.

"Honestly, for the vaping law, I'm pretty blind with what's going on especially for small scale businesses like mine," he said. "I think the government's blind as well; before we used to sell vapes we sold (cigarettes) because there was no vaping in Darwin - specifically in Darwin - not long ago."

The manager said he expected to sell more cigarettes following the ban.

"I remember (years ago) my smoke sales drastically coming down and there was a rising pattern in people vaping so I was like 'either I quit my business now and go home, or I go with the market', he said. "With this ban, we are now getting ready to go back to cigarettes."

An NT Health spokesperson said the Territory was "working with other jurisdictions" in pursuit of national reform.

"It is illegal to sell and purchase nicotine vaping products in the Northern Territory in retail settings, including those holding a tobacco licence," the spokesperson said.

HEALTHY, STRONG AND LUCKY TO BE BORN ON JAN 1

Talara McHugh

Weighing a healthy 3740 grams, Liam (Phuc Khang) Ng was the first baby to be born at the Darwin Private Hospital in 2024.

Baby Liam was welcomed into the world at 12.08pm on New Year's Day and given the traditional Vietnamese name Cuong meaning "healthy, strong and lucky" reflecting aspirations for his future.

Proud parents Vivian, 27, and Kin, 35, were overjoyed at the birth of their first child who arrived "exactly on his due date".

"He's our first born and we're excited but also [have] a little bit of anxiety and nervousness but so excited," Mr Ng said.

"[He was born on] the first of the week, first of the month, and the first of the year, he's so special to us," Mrs Ng said.

"Everyone will celebrate the new year but he will also have his birthday, too, which is so special for him and we hope he will be healthy and have an easy going life."

Proud parents Vivian and Kin Ng with baby Liam. Picture: Pema Tamang Pakhrin

Mrs Ng said she had an easy pregnancy and was at home in Jingli when her water broke on New Year's Eve.

"It was really easy for me, I was really, really healthy, he gives me strength and I feel even stronger than before I was pregnant," she said.

"Labour was a little bit hard but it went good, it was nearly 30 hours for the contractions but it all worked."

"When he came out, he and my wife [were] safe and healthy so I'm very happy," Mr Ng said.

The couple are hoping to welcome more children in the future but will see how little Liam goes first.

The very first new Territorian of the year was born at 26 minutes past midnight in Alice Springs.

CLP fires first election shot

Councillor will stand in Goyder

Camden Smith

The CLP has fired the first pre-selection shot of the election year – announcing Litchfield councillor Andrew Mackay as its candidate for the Goyder electorate in rural Darwin.

Eight months out from the August 24 election, Mr Mackay is likely to take on long-time independent Kezia Purick, who appears set to recontest the seat.

Mr Mackay moved with his parents to the Northern Territory when he was seven. He attended Girraween Primary School and Taminmin College and completed a Bachelor of Science majoring in mathematics and minoring in computational science and statistics at Monash.

A resident of Humpty Doo, in 2021 he successfully stood as a candidate in Central Ward at the Litchfield Council where he campaigned on integrity and financial issues.

At 24 he was the youngest councillor elected in the Territory in 2021 and will be 27 when Territorians head to the polls on August 24.

After completing his degree, Mr Mackay undertook a Certificate III in aquaculture and worked as a data analyst with Humpty Doo Barramundi.

A fan of data driven policies, he also acknowledges the shortcomings of relying only on statistics for decision making.

"Never trust a statistic you haven't doctored yourself," he said.

"Politics is about talking to people, understanding the situation and getting figures or data sets to work through solutions.

"I want to enter Territory politics for the same reason I got onto council.

"I looked at the way the Territory is being run and I thought I can sit here and complain or do something about it.

"I work in line with the community's expectations and treat people with respect because everyone's got an opinion."

He said this year's election would be a turning point for the Territory.

"I am a proud Territorian, fiercely passionate about the rural area and want to be part of a CLP team that can grow our economy and make the Territory safe," he said.

"Growing up in the Territory has taught me that we have a unique lifestyle and abundance of opportunities, and it breaks my heart to see the Territory go backwards under Labor.

"I want to be part of the change that drives the Territory forward so that we once again are the envy of the nation," Mr Mackay said.

Independent MLA Kezia Purick, who has held Goyder since 2008, could prove a formidable stumbling block to Mr Mackay securing a Legislative Assembly seat.

She responded with a question when asked on Wednesday if she would recontest Goyder. "Why wouldn't I be standing?" she said.

CLP president Shane Stone said Mr Mackay's maths-science background would be an enormous asset to the Territory.

"Andrew brings his youth, energy and enthusiasm to the 2024 election team," Mr Stone said.

"Most importantly Andrew's lived work experience will add considerably to the CLP plans to rebuild the Territory economy," Mr Stone said.

Nominations for candidates for the seat of Port Darwin, Fannie Bay, Fong Lim, Nightcliff, Johnston and Casuarina close at the end of January and will be announced at the CLP Central Council in Mataranka in mid February.

Mackay fisherman 'Squid' and the tinnie that took on an almost 5 metre-long crocodile; and (below) St Helens Boat ramp, close to where the attack took place.

'I was very lucky': 5m croc launches into fisho's boat

Fergus Gregg

Richard Brookman's New Year's Eve turned into a fight for survival when a crocodile almost 5m in length leapt into his boat and launched itself at him.

Mr Brookman, nicknamed Squid after he caught more than 520 squid in one day, has been fishing the area his whole life. His story starts in the afternoon on December 31, 2023 when he finished up a phone conversation with his friend and Mirani MP Steve Andrew.

"He called me up to wish me a happy new year," Mr Brookman said. "He was thinking about coming with me, but was worried about the storms."

Squid left St Helens Beach boat ramp after 2pm, when the tide was going out, and took his boat into Jane Creek with the intention of setting up his crab pots and catching mangrove jack.

About 5:30pm he decided to head further up the creek to escape the swell.

About 8.30pm, Squid set up a tarp to cover his electronics from the weather and moved to the front of the boat.

"I remember the time because I was on Facebook on my phone, when I felt this eerie feeling of being watched," Squid said.

"At that time of night, it's not a great feeling to have." Squid turned on his headlight and saw one eye staring back at him, roughly 800m away.

"I wanted him to face me, the distance between the eyes usually a good indication of how big a croc is, but he just wouldn't turn, just kept swimming, hugging the bank," Squid said.

"I checked my position and looked away from him, but he did 800m in about two minutes and was right beside me."

Squid, a native to the area, was able to tell the difference between a crocodile simply protecting its territory and one acting aggressively.

"He was hungry," Squid said. "I was halfway to the motor when he sank beneath the water."

"By the time I was at my (motor) he was in the boat."

The crocodile had launched itself out of the water with its mouth open and covered the entire width of the 10ft tinnie.

"He more or less used the rails as a slide to come and get me," Squid said. "By the time he reached me, the boat was already tipping up."

"I jumped over him to get to the front of the boat so I wouldn't fall out the back. The whole of the boat was out of the water."

"Once he slipped back into the water I had about 500 litres of water in the boat."

Squid took off to escape the crocodile, even though it followed him for some time after he left the area.

"I was very lucky that night. If I'd had someone with me it would have been different circumstance, someone would have been killed no two ways about it."

Jail breakout plot thwarted

15 prisoners found hiding in ceiling

Zizi Averill

Fifteen inmates were reportedly busted hiding in the ceiling during a foiled attempt to escape the Alice Springs prison.

United Workers Union NT Secretary Erina Early said around 15 prisoners attempted to escape from Alice Springs Correctional Centre on Boxing Day.

Ms Early said the inmates used their T-shirts to rip the wiring off the fans, before tearing off the metal sheeting and climbing into the crawl space.

She said due to the extreme heat some of the prisoners carried metal fans up into the ceiling. Ms Early said the young prisoners were aged between 18 and 20 and were housed in G-Block — which is used to separate vulnerable people from the general prison population.

Ms Early said a worker realised they were missing following a room check, but it was unknown how long the 15 prisoners were in the crawl space.

The union representative said their alleged escape attempt was aided by a lack of proper repairs on G-Block, which was at the centre of a riot in 2022 in which prisoners reportedly set fires and smashed doors, locks and windows.

Ms Early said tensions in the prison were high due to the extreme heat stress at the centre, with December summer temperatures exceeding 43C combining with overcrowding in the unairconditioned desert prison.

Alice Springs correctional staff have previously told the United Workers Union that after years of warnings, nothing had been done to address the heat or overcrowding risks.

"This heat or hot weather issue has been there for years, and what has been done so far? Just paint a few G-Block walls and putting a few holes in the Perspex," one worker said in a 2022 union mental health survey.

"We need people who think for the safety and security of officers or are we waiting for prisoners to riot and then we act?" NT Ombudsman Peter Shoyer has repeatedly recommended installing air-conditioning at Alice Springs prison, following years of complaints from prisoners.

In his 2022-23 annual report Mr Shoyer stressed the dangers of heat stress to prisoners in the small cells with limited airflow, but he also warned there were serious risks to workers.

"Heat stress not only impacts negatively on prisoner comfort, welfare and safety but also on the good management of the prisons."

"Prisoners who are hot, tired and aggravated from sleepless nights brought on by extreme heat are not so easily amenable to compliance and more prone to outbursts."

During the 2018 summer a riot broke out and prisoners were tear gassed after refusing to return to their cells due to temperatures exceeding 40C.

Corrections and NT Police were contacted for comment.

Storm over port strike action

Jack Quail

Businesses and the Coalition have called on the Albanese government to urgently intervene in strikes in the nation's ports, which they claim threaten to worsen the cost of living crunch.

The industrial action, led by the Maritime Union of Australia (MUA), at container terminals in Melbourne, Sydney, Brisbane and Fremantle operated by DP World, one of the country's largest stevedores, has resulted in a backlog of some 45,000 containers and is expected to cost the Australian economy more than $20 million a day, according to employer organisation estimates.

While the stevedore is seeking to update its rostering arrangement, the union has participated in industrial action since October, undertaking work stoppages and 24-hour strikes, in a bid to win a pay rise worth 8 per cent a year for its members after its last workplace deal expired.

The stoppages have meant imports from white goods to medicines and exports such as red meat and fresh fruit — are facing 10 to 12-day delays.

EES Shipping managing director Brian Hack said: "This is no longer just about DP World and the MUA, businesses are being significantly impacted".

THE GOOD, THE BAD AND THE UGLY: YOUR GUIDE TO 2023 IN NT COURTS

PART II

Jason Walls, Zizi Averill, Fia Walsh and Nathaniel Chambers

From a historic class action win, to two of the NT's top movers and shakers geared up to face off, here's your look back in time of the ups and downs of criminal and civil Territory justice in 2023.

APRIL STOLEN GENERATIONS CLASS ACTION

A historic $50m Stolen Generations class action settlement was hailed as a victory, not just for survivors of the shameful act of state sponsored cruelty, but their families as well.

In April, the NSW Supreme Court approved the settlement reached by the commonwealth government and the descendants of children removed from their parents in the NT between 1912 and 1973.

Stolen Generations survivor Eileen Cummings was taken from her mother in the Arnhem Land community of Bulman aged just four, and did not see her again until fate intervened and she was able to track her down as a teenager.

"For most of us it was the trauma of being removed from your mother and your people and your country, told you're not allowed to speak your language," she said.

"You're not allowed to even see your mother again and never go back to your country, those were the things that were instilled in our head."

NATASHA FYLES AND JAMIE CHALKER

Later that month, Chief Minister Natasha Fyles and former Police Commissioner Jamie Chalker were on track to face off in court over Ms Fyles' decision to sack Mr Chalker.

Mr Chalker had launched civil legal action against Ms Fyles and Police Minister Kate Worden to restrain them from recommending Administrator Hugh Heggie remove him from his post.

His lawyer Arthur Moses SC said talks between the two legal teams had so far failed to resolve the issues and the trial should be brought on as soon as possible, during which "there will be some cross examination of the first and second defendants".

"I'm sure the defendants don't like the spectacle of a public hearing in respect of these matters if the matter can be resolved between themselves, in both their interest, and the public interest," he said.

Fortunately for everyone's interests, the parties reached a confidential settlement with Mr Chalker retiring his commission and Ms Fyles thanking him for his service.

NAMES SUPPRESSED

Also in April a young Darwin couple who "abandoned" a two-year-old boy for up to eight hours at a time without food or water pleaded guilty to failing to provide the necessities of life.

The Supreme Court heard a search of the woman's phone revealed text messages sent to the man in which she said "I smack him my hand is so painful", before sending him a video of the child "crying hysterically".

"I'm so angry with myself. I can't control my anger. I was smacking sleeping (name redacted)," she wrote.

"(He) is still awake. I smack him those canes. Still awake this boy. I don't have patience to deal with him now. Sorry to disturb you."

The woman was later sentenced to five months' home detention.

MAY EZEKIEL NARNDU

In May, a man who threw a steel pole into the skull of a peacemaker trapped as a community broke out in "lawless", "tribal warfare" was jailed for seven years after being found guilty of manslaughter.

After an eight-day trial in the Supreme Court Ezekiel Narndu was found to have killed the 33-year-old man in the remote West Daly community on April 16 last year.

In sentencing, Justice Graham Hiley said rocks, louvres and steel bars were commonly thrown during violent outbursts in Wadeye without fatal consequences, but Narndu "should have known" his actions carried a "strong risk" of causing serious injury.

"You had no regard to public safety and seemed to be motivated by hate against members of other gangs and family," he said.

In April, Chief Minister Natasha Fyles and former Police Commissioner Jamie Chalke were on track to face off in court over Ms Fyles' decision to sack Mr Chalke.

New jet skis for lifesavers

Volunteer lifesavers and lifeguards are reminding people to take care on Australian waterways and swim at patrolled locations, with more than 646 rescues conducted in NSW alone since Christmas Eve.

Since the start of the patrol season in September, Surf Life Saving NSW volunteers have conducted 1360 rescues, with almost half (646) of those since December 24, 2023, during the busy holiday period.

To support lifesavers, 14 new jet skis have been deployed to NSW beaches.

Accounting for about 13 per cent of rescues conducted by SLSNSW volunteers last year, jet skis play a key role in keeping people safe.

Tiny Aussie fossil find

Microscopic fossils found in the NT contain the oldest photosynthetic structures ever discovered, shedding light on the origins of photosynthesis.

Belgian researchers found thylakoids, which are also found inside plant cells and some modern cyanobacteria, in the 1.75 billion-year-old fossils called Navifusa majensis.

The discovery of thylakoids in a specimen of this age suggests photosynthesis — the process used by plants and cyanobacteria to convert water and carbon dioxide into glucose and oxygen using sunlight — may have evolved before 1.75 billion years ago.

Huge seals are fussy eaters

As one of the top predators roaming Antarctica, the sizeable southern elephant seal has its fair selection of the menu.

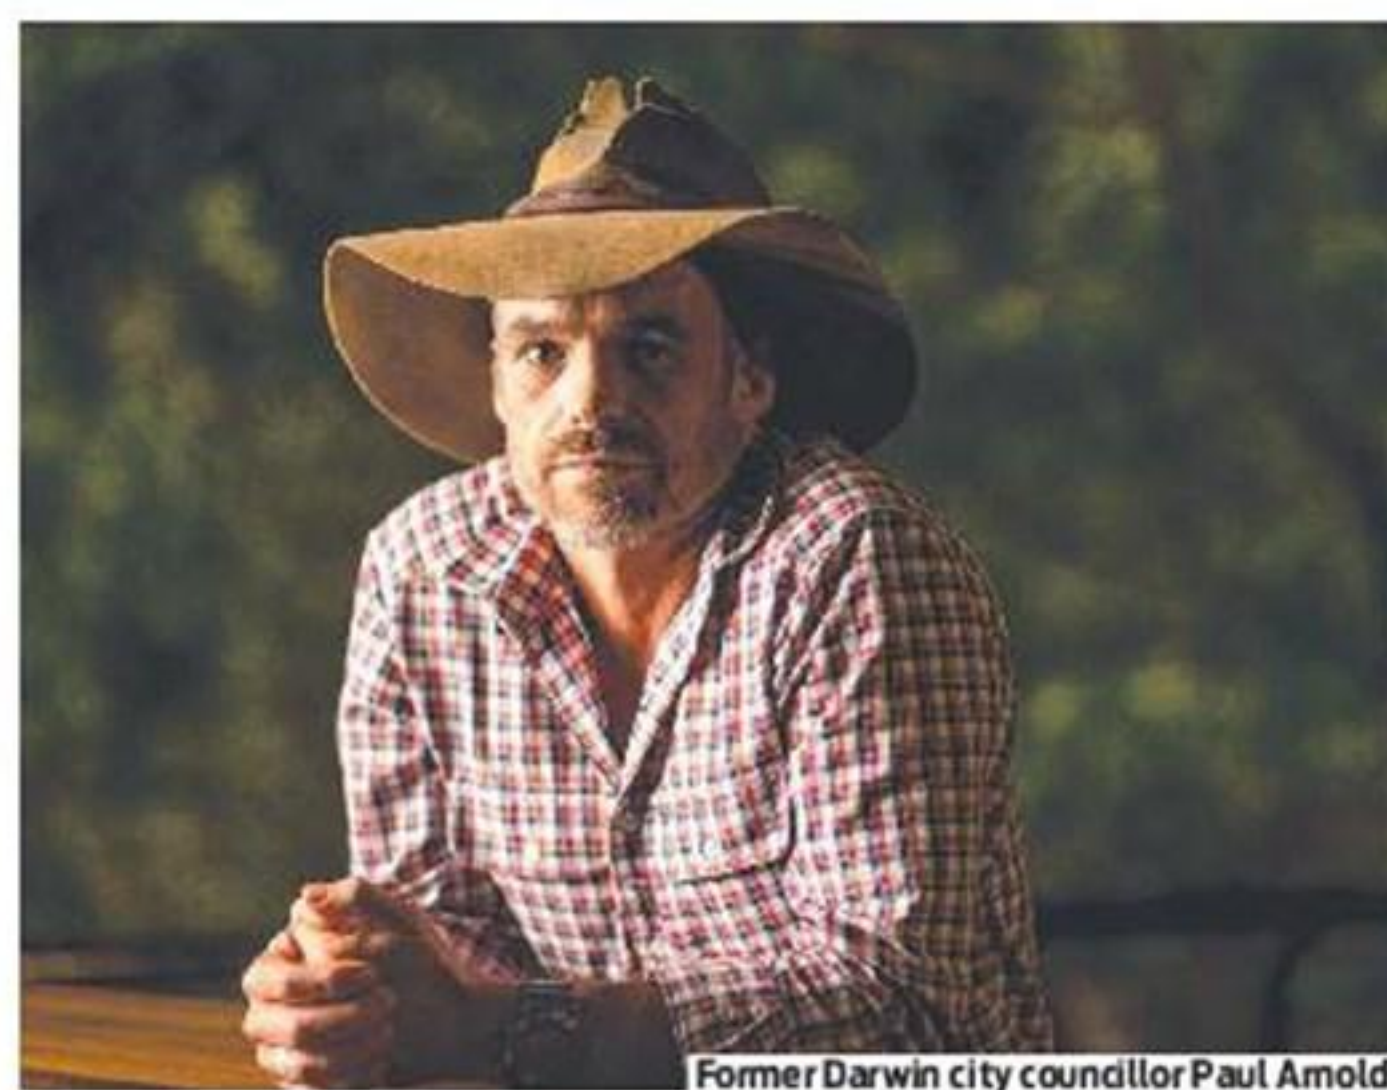

But it turns out they don't just want to eat anything and everything.

According to new research led by UNSW Sydney, male southern elephant seals have their favourite foods, and they like to stick with them. In other words, they're fussy eaters.

"They could have the pick of the buffet and yet each male southern elephant seal eats a lot of the same food, which is just a fraction of what's on offer," says lead author Andrea Cornack.

"So, they are extremely picky eaters..."

Djawa Yunupingu

Former Darwin city councillor Paul Arnold.

BABY CROKER

An inquest into the tragic death of a two-year-old Katherine girl referred to as Baby Croker heard how simple oversights at a backyard barbecue led to her drowning.

NT Coroner Elisabeth Armitage said the inquest was "not about casting blame" but aimed to improve water safety in the Territory.

"Every parent has moments of inattention... we are all soul searching after this tragic event because it takes a village to raise a child," Ms Armitage said.

"(This inquest) will examine what we, the community, can do to ensure our kids can safely enjoy fun in backyard pools."

In handing down her findings in September, Ms Armitage recommended the Territory's pool safety Act be updated to implement regular pool fence inspections, and to remove exemptions such as the one allowing pools and spas on properties larger than 1.8ha to be unfenced.

YUNUPINGU

In happier news, a decision in a compensation claim launched by late Gumatj leader Yunupingu in 2019 was finally handed down by the Federal Court in April.

In upholding the claim, the court found the commonwealth failed to act "on just terms" when it greenlit Nabalco to begin its bauxite mining operation on the Gove Peninsula in 1968.

Surviving clan leader Djawa Yunupingu welcomed the decision, saying it was a "continuation" of his late brother's legacy.

"Although my brother did not live to hear today's judgment, he would have been pleased that the Federal Court's decision recognised the fundamental right of First Nations people to be treated equally by Australian law," he said.

"It is a continuation of his life's work, which began with the Bark Petition and the Gove Land Rights case to have Native Title properly recognised as the heart of the identity of all First Nations people."

ity of all First Nations people."

JUNE JEYARAJ 'JEY' LAMECH

It was revealed in June that Darwin therapist and self-proclaimed spiritual leader Jeyaraj "Jey" Lamech had lost his registration after a finding that he gave raunchy advice to a vulnerable patient.

The NT Civil and Administrative Tribunal found the 69-year-old made sexually inappropriate comments to a vulnerable female client, resulting in three complaints in 2020.

The tribunal heard one of Mr Lamech's clients complained to the Psychology Board, alleging he used sexually suggestive language during their sessions.

The woman — who had anxiety and a history of trauma related to relationships with men — said her therapist suggested she wear lacy lingerie to "increase her confidence".

Mr Lamech was also accused of lending the woman the book The Sexually Confident Wife, and making comments about "women's nipples reacting with excitement".

In January, the NTCAT formally removed Mr Lamech's registration and disqualified him from reapplying for two years.

Mr Lamech was not accused of any criminal wrongdoing.

TONY ROWE

After a breakthrough in the search for answers in the disappearance of Darwin man Tony Rowe, police charged Timothy Hunt and a woman whose name is suppressed from publication over their alleged involvement in May.

Hunt was charged with committing a violent act that caused Mr Rowe's death some time after he went missing a year earlier, while the woman faces one count each of destruction of evidence and making a false declaration.

By June a third person had been charged in relation to Mr Rowe's disappearance, with Keith Allen Walcott facing charges of being an accessory after the fact, blackmail and extortion.

All three cases remain before the courts with each defendant yet to enter a plea.

PAUL ARNOLD

Former Darwin city councillor Paul Arnold was released on bail in June after the professional photographer was sensationally arrested in front of his Smith St Mall gallery.

The former councillor was later charged with multiple counts of property damage, aggravated assault and deprivation of liberty, with the allegations spanning a nine-month period and dating back to August 2022.

Those charges remain before the courts while Arnold went on to apply for a restraining order against his former council colleague Amye Un following what he described in his application as a "concerted and targeted campaign" against him via social media.

Ms Un has previously said her comments were not intended to be taken literally and that "words" were her only weapon.

Arnold has indicated he will plead not guilty to all charges.

Many are holding their breath to see if bans on nicotine vaping will reduce the scourge

Northern Territory retailers have expressed concern at the new laws aiming to stamp out the selling of nicotine vapes.

Many of the tobacconists are worried about how the new rules will affect their incomes.

"The country has gone from having no real regulation around vaping to introducing this massive ban; it's similar to prohibition," one shop owner said.

But given the enormous uptake of vaping in recent years and the now known negative health impacts of the habit, it can't be a bad thing to have more deterrents in place right?

Obviously not if, like this shop owner says, people turn back to smoking instead.

But with prices for cigarettes already sky-high, hopefully it impacts those young people who have taken up the act just because of the pretty colours and alluring scents.

Territorians are not immune to the impact of vaping and the illegal supply of them.

Last August a store was found to be illegally selling thousands of vaping products sold with nicotine.

The maximum punishment for that breach was 200 penalty points and two years' imprisonment.

When the story was reported, a poll of NT News readers voted strongly in favour of stronger regulations around vaping.

In July, the NT government rolled out an educational campaign targeted at young Territorians to teach them about what they are actually inhaling when they vape.

It was an important first step on the journey to stamping out the behaviour, but does it seem to have worked?

A walk along Mitchell St of a weekend will indicate we still have a long way to go.

Attitudes towards the act is another thing as well.

A poll back in August of almost 200 readers showed the majority (68 per cent) thought the rules around vaping should be tougher.

Now that they are, a more recent poll of about 100 readers has a much more split opinion on whether a prescription should be needed to vape. Clearly a few more residents have taken up vaping in the months passed, so any way of reducing the scourge of the habit is a good thing.

Your Say

Labor pains

You know an election is coming and things are really desperate when the 5th floor ALP bureaucracy adds former failed election candidates and low-achieving former politicians to the staffing mix.

Would love to see the job description and skill set for the newly created Union Liaison job with a salary of $120K. But in keeping with the lack of transparency and accountability shown by this government, it was never advertised.

As a bitterly divided ALP stumbles to an election in August, leaders-by-default Lawler and Paech need to work hard to restore the integrity, credibility and confidence that Gunner and Fyles destroyed.

Faith in ABC restored

Dear Aunty. All is forgiven.

Having spent the past year cursing some of your radical and "woke" TV journalists and presenters, I feel you have almost fully atoned for their actions.

Your superlative uninterrupted presentations of the Royal Command Performance at the Albert Hall and a few days later, the breathtaking entertainment and spectacular lighting effects of the Royal Edinburgh Tattoo made me realise there are some rare staff who know the type of TV programs Australians want to see.

Cor the first time in a long while I was proud to say, "I was watching my ABC TV".

Search for openers

No one is indispensable or irreplaceable. There will be other great Australian openers after Warner and Khawaja, but fitting the profile of a go-getting, speedy, wilful, gutsy, aggressive, mean son of a gun like Warner is not the only way.

Australian cricket however has a template for what its batsmen and bowlers and keepers must adhere to. So Cam Bancroft, Marcus Harris and Matt Renshaw DO NOT currently fit that template. They would be opening for Australia now if they did.

However, when Warner and Khawaja go, and given that they have good form, they may be considered.

Australia seems to be going through a patch of amazing success for such a small nation. There are fellows running around now in the Shield, ODIs and even the BBL who open or bat high up with success. Any one of those men will be considered to open if he has the right mettle.

Left's attack a big blow to our social cohesion

James Morrow

It feels like the annual fight over Australia Day comes around earlier and earlier every year. Perhaps it's because the Bureau of Meteorology failed to deliver on its promise of a long, hot summer to keep us otherwise distracted.

Or maybe it's because after the Voice, everyone's nerves are a bit on edge over the subject. But either way, the battle is on – again.

A few days ago we learned that 81 councils across the country had decided to ditch their Australia Day citizenship ceremonies out of respect for Aboriginal sensibilities, despite the country voting overwhelmingly against precisely this sort of racialised grandstanding at the referendum.

Now, of course this is bad.

It is yet another example of local government doing the opposite of what local voters want and thinking their remit goes beyond the honourable if dull trinity of rates, roads and rubbish.

The trend against Australia Day citizenship ceremonies is also precisely what Prime Minister Anthony Albanese hoped would develop when he opened the door to councils freelancing date changes when he modified the rules around these things back in December 2022.

And it is another blow against Australia's social cohesion, which is already fraying badly.

Our formerly easygoing, reasonably high trust society is, by any measure, doing poorly.

Whether it is something sinister like ethnic mobs intimidating Jews and forcing changes to government policy on Israel or more subtle developments like electronic gates at supermarkets (message: we think you're all thieves) there is a growing sense that we are no longer all in this together. The most recent Scanlon Social Cohesion Report put numbers behind this: Just 48 per cent of us now feel a strong sense of belonging and only 33 per cent feel a strong pride in the Australian way of life.

No wonder progressives – despite the referendum loss – think they are pushing on an open door in their attempt to remake Australia and crack our common foundations.

So, what are conservatives and non-political Australians who just want to feel a part of, and pride in, their nation supposed to do?

The first thing, as always, is to recognise that there is a problem.

Then, stop shying away from the solutions. That the so-called progressive side of politics has wanted to hollow out the meaning of modern Australia for its own cynical purposes is well documented.

For the left, post-First Fleet Australia was an illegitimate and genocidal monstrosity that only began to redeem itself with the official adoption of multiculturalism.

Our British inheritance is looked upon as something tacky and a bit shameful, like a slightly embarrassing handed-down collection of commemorative plates no one quite knows what to do with. At the same time the story of us as a prison colony turned prosperous democracy is a triumph that does not fit the narrative.

Yet the right, too, has to shoulder some of the blame.

In office for nine years, the Coalition did nothing serious to reform Julia Gillard's disastrous Australian Curriculum.

Many in the Coalition have also shied away from these discussions for fear of being seen as "nativist" or have been seduced by Big Australia business lobbies that see population growth in solely economic terms.

Beyond lip service to "a fair go" and "mateship", the collective Australian ideal has, over time, started to ring a bit hollow. Particularly for young Australians who feel comprehensively duded by the housing market and whose ire is being stoked by a weird coalition of property developers, activists and think-tank economists. The result is that the citizenship that may or may not be conferred to migrants on Australia Day is less about joining a family with a proud (if, yes, imperfect) story to tell and more about locking in one's status to vote and stay and claim Medicare. And when, even with that citizenship, new Australians are told to preserve the old ways, not only does it raise the question "what's the point?" but it can get downright dangerous.

Think about how, Scott Morrison's admirable and tough stance on China was blamed for the Liberals losing Australian voters of Chinese extraction in key seats at the 2022 election. This is not to say that ethnic constituencies are acting as fifth columns but it is to note that they are lacking any sort of meaningful idea around what it is to be Australian.

AI can be a highly useful tool in education

James Thorley

Since ChatGPT's launch in November 2022, Australian universities have been concerned about the potential for this highly accessible form of generative artificial intelligence to amplify cheating, with just as many optimistic about the opportunities it offers when used the right way.

Some students, on the other hand, have been spooked by AI writing detectors – worried they'll be falsely accused, with a handful already reporting their original work has been marked as plagiarism.

While higher education continues to grapple with what place ChatGPT should hold within the sector, it must also evaluate what AI detection is and should be.

As of July 2023, of the 65 million submissions processed through Turnitin for AI writing, 9.5 per cent featured over 20 per cent AI writing and 3.3 per cent contained between 80 and 100 per cent AI writing.

The data is no guide to misconduct or misuse of AI, as there could be many legitimate uses within those numbers, but it gives very interesting insight into usage patterns and, over time, will be able to highlight some key trends.

Likewise on an individual paper, AI detection should not be used as a sole indicator of cheating or AI misuse.

Instead, the job of AI detection is to give educators the information they need to investigate and work with students to determine the best next steps to optimise their learning and results. It is an 'assistant' to teachers to supplement existing methods for detecting plagiarism and unoriginal work (such as contract cheating).

The pandemic-forced attempt to 'lift and shift' education to the digital realm showed that technology shouldn't, and can't, work alone.

It remains, as it always was, critical for humans to play the leading role in education. In the context of managing generative AI, that means not only giving teachers tools to detect ChatGPT but investing in their digital upskilling so they can effectively use those capabilities alongside their existing skills.

Longer term, the important question is how academia adapts to the increasing presence of generative AI. Educators need to continue looking at improved ways to design assessments, whatever the format, to minimise opportunities for misconduct.

When used the right way, AI is one of the most powerful and transformative technologies available to us. A ban on generative AI will not only be ineffective from an academic integrity point of view, but could also be harmful to the progress which could be made.

James Thorley is Regional Vice President, APAC at Turnitin.

Albanese dodges cover-up question

Ellen Ransley,
Jack Quail and
Madeleine Achenza

Prime Minister Anthony Albanese has refused to say whether he believes the Morrison government tried to "cover up" Howard-era documents about Australia's involvement in the Iraq war.

It comes after the revelation on New Year's Day that 78 documents were missing from a now declassified file created in 2003, which reveal then-prime minister John Howard's decision-making process before Australia entered the Iraq war. The documents suggest Mr

Howard had decided to join the US-led invasion before taking the matter to cabinet.

Speaking at a press conference on Wednesday, Mr Albanese (inset) was asked if he was concerned about a "cover up" in regards to the missing documents.

"Well, that's why we have asked Dennis Richardson to do the review," he responded.

"I'm not aware of the circumstances. Obviously, I wasn't a member of the cabinet in 2003."

He went on to add there was "no public servant in Australia who is more respected" than Mr Richardson, the former defence department secretary.

Mr Richardson is due to report the results of his review in the next two weeks.

The Department of Prime Minister and Cabinet had revealed just hours before the 2003 papers were made public that the missing documents were not lost, but had not been handed over by the Morrison government to the archives, "oversights" it said was "likely as a result of Covid-19 disruptions at the time".

The department said the missing documents had been located on December 19 and had been since transferred to the archives.

Mr Albanese said on Wednesday that he expected all the missing documents to be released by the National Archives, save for anything that could compromise national security.

Dozen Aussies escape Japanese plane crash

Jet passengers safe after crash with smaller aircraft that killed five

AFP

Twelve Australians were on board the Japan Airlines passenger jet that collided with a Japan Coast Guard plane at Tokyo's Haneda Airport, according to Emergency Management Minister Murray Watt.

"I know this time of year, Japan is a pretty popular tourist destination for Australians. My understanding is that with the plane crash, there were about 12 Australian passengers on those planes, but none have been injured," Mr Watt told Sky News.

All 379 passengers and crew on board the passenger plane which burst into flames were safely evacuated, Japanese transport minister Tetsuo Saito told reporters.

But five of the six crew members from the smaller plane – bound for central Japan after Monday's huge earthquake – died, he said.

The captain escaped and survived but was injured, he said, cautioning that "we're not at the stage to explain the cause" of the accident.

Television and unverified footage shared on social media showed the Japan Airlines (JAL) airliner moving along the runway before a large eruption of orange flames and black smoke burst from beneath and behind it.

Video posted to social media platform X showed people sliding down an inflatable emergency slide from the side of the passenger plane while flames shot out from the rear of the aircraft.

All 367 passengers plus 12 crew on-board were swiftly taken off the plane before dozens of fire engines with flashing blue lights sprayed the fuselage.

They however failed to put out the flames coming out of windows near the wings and the blaze soon engulfed the entire aircraft.

The plane, reportedly an Airbus 350, had arrived from New Chitose Airport serving Sapporo on the northern island of Hokkaido. Those on board included eight children.

"Smoke began to fill the plane, and I thought, 'this could be really bad', an adult male passenger told reporters.

"An announcement said doors in the back and middle could not be opened. So everyone disembarked from the front," he said.

A female passenger said it had been dark on-board as the fire intensified after landing.

"It was getting hot inside the plane, and I thought, to be honest, I would not survive," she said in comments shown on broadcaster NHK.

The coast guard plane had been preparing to fly to Ishikawa prefecture to deliver supplies after the devastating New Year's Day earthquake which killed at least 48 people.

Prime Minister Fumio Kishida praised the deceased crew members on their way to help the victims of the quake.

"These were employees who had a high sense of mission and responsibility for the affected areas. It's very regrettable," he told reporters at the airport.

"I express my respect and gratitude to their sense of mission," he said.

Haneda suspended domestic flights in the wake of the fire on the runway, according to its website, but most international takeoffs and landings were still operating.

There was also burning debris on the runway at Haneda, one of the world's busiest airports.

A transport ministry official said investigations into the incident were ongoing, including exchanges between the flights and air traffic control.

Japan has not suffered a serious commercial aviation accident in decades.

Its worst ever accident was in 1985, when a JAL jumbo jet flying from Tokyo to Osaka crashed in central Gunma region, killing 520 passengers and crew.

That disaster was one of the world's deadliest plane crashes involving a single flight.

Response to public 'love letter' goes viral

Jordan McCarthy

A public declaration of love has led to a response from an Australian deputy mayor that has gone viral, with his post gathering more than 5000 likes in just a few days.

Gladstone Regional Council Deputy Mayor Kahn Goodluck shared an image of a road sign that had "I love you Hannah" spray-painted across it in neon pink paint while also adding that the lovelorn artist's message had been "plastered all over town" at 20 or more other locations.

Mr Goodluck said he was sure Hannahs everywhere were appreciative of the attention, but the cost of fixing the signs would land on taxpayers.

"I'm sure everyone travelling around BITS over the last few days has noticed that someone out there really, REALLY loves Hannah," he wrote.

"While this very public display of affection has no doubt left many Hannahs feeling the love, it will cost ratepayers money for crews to head out and clean all this up.

"Please don't use public roads, road signs and car parks as your personal love letters."

Mr Goodluck did have alternative ideas for the local Romeo, however.

"You can try: Writing 'I love you Hannah' on a nice hand made card, buying some chocolates or a piece of jewellery or a surprise picnic in the park," he said.

If caught, the artist could face a fine as much as $3096.

We understand clucks

Seven out of 10 humans can correctly tell if a chicken is happy or not based on their clucks, according to Australian researchers.

A University of Queensland team recruited nearly 200 people and played them recordings of different chicken calls – some where they were expecting a reward and some from other contexts.

The researchers say 69 per cent of participants correctly guessed whether a chicken was excited about a potential reward, and previous experience didn't appear to change how accurate their guesses were.

The researchers say this provides evidence that we may be able to innately perceive the emotions of chickens, which could help us make better choices about their welfare.

Twisted takes on iconic Mickey

AFP

Barely 24 hours after Disney's initial copyright on Mickey Mouse expired, two new indie horror films starring the character have been announced.

Steamboat Willie, the first Disney movie to feature Mickey, entered the public domain under US law on Monday, 95 years on from its initial release.

That means anyone is now free to copy, share, reuse and adapt the primitive, early versions of the characters that appear within the film, including Mickey and girlfriend Minnie.

Despite warnings from Disney that it would seek to safeguard its most iconic character, opportunistic filmmakers had been expected to quickly announce their own unofficial remakes and adaptations – and they did not disappoint.

Mickey's Mouse Trap will feature a masked killer dressed as Mickey stalking a group of young friends through an amusement arcade, while another untitled horror-comedy sees a sadistic mouse tormenting unsuspecting ferry passengers.

"We just wanted to have fun with it all," said Mickey's Mouse Trap director Jamie Bailey, in a trailer posted on YouTube.

"I mean it's Steamboat Willie's Mickey Mouse murdering people. It's ridiculous. We ran with it and had fun doing it and I think it shows."

The low-budget horror-comedy is expected to launch in March.

Meanwhile filmmaker Steven LaMorte – known for The Mean One, a 2022 slasher romp inspired by The Grinch – is working on his own "twisted take" on Mickey.

"Steamboat Willie has brought joy to generations, but beneath that cheerful exterior lies a potential for pure, unhinged terror," he said.

Analysts say Disney is likely to send in the lawyers if anyone oversteps.

Only the earliest, black-and-white version of Mickey is in the public domain – not the colourful character from later Disney films like Fantasia. And trademark protections mean that any film or product that could mislead consumers into thinking it was made by Disney could be liable.

Meghan and Harry in Dusseldorf last year. Picture: Getty

'Redemption unlikely'

Tiffany Bakker

Meghan Markle and Prince Harry won't get the "year of redemption" they are hoping for in 2024, according to a royal author.

The Duke and Duchess of Sussex are said to be planning a fresh start, after facing backlash last year for their Netflix documentary and Prince Harry's bombshell biography, Spare.

"Harry and Meghan have let it be known that they see 2024 as their year of redemption, to which my reaction is 'good luck with that'," said royal expert and author Phil Dampier.

"It's a trite phrase dreamt up by their Hollywood PR people and in reality means very little. Actions speak louder than words and the Sussekses need to do things which will convince the public that they want to redeem themselves, not just talk about it."

The Sussekses' absence was strikingly apparent on Christmas Day when the rest of the royal family, including King Charles, Prince William and Kate Middleton, went to church at Sandringham.

Mr Dampier said the inclusion of Prince Andrew's former wife, Sarah Ferguson, on the Christmas guest list for the first time in years, sent a strong message.

"The royals put on a show of unity at Christmas, with even Prince Andrew's ex-wife Fergie being allowed to walk to church and join them for lunch," he said.

"The message was clear – everyone was welcome except Harry and Meghan."

Mr Dampier said Harry and Meghan could not "compete" with the Prince and Princess of Wales.

"I think the penny has finally dropped with them that they can never compete with an ancient institution admired around the world, particularly the goodwill still lingering from the late Queen's reign," he said.

"William and Kate have never been more popular and the Sussekses can't hold a candle to them."

Hamas deputy killed by drone

Fears conflict will widen

Andrew Koubaridis and Tiffany Bakker

Hamas's deputy leader was killed in an Israeli drone strike in suburban Beirut as Israel's war against Palestinian militants reached Lebanon.

Saleh al-Aruri was killed along with his bodyguards in the strike by Israel, which vowed to destroy Hamas after the movement's unprecedented October 7 attacks on Israel.

Aruri, one of the founders of Hamas' military wing, had headed the group's presence in the West Bank and had been a target for Israel even before the October 7 attack that killed 1,200 Israelis.

Israel has previously announced the killing in Gaza of Hamas commanders and officials during the war, but Aruri is the most high-profile figure to be killed, and his death came in the first strike on the Lebanese capital since the war began. Israeli army spokesman Daniel Hagari did not directly comment on Aruri's killing but said the military was "highly prepared for any scenario" in its aftermath.

A security official in Lebanon confirmed the information about Aruri's killing.

Lebanese state media reported the strike hit a Hamas office in Beirut's southern suburbs, a stronghold of Lebanon's Iran-backed Hezbollah movement, a Hamas ally.

Hamas TV also said Israel had killed Aruri in Lebanon, and Lebanese media reported a total of seven people were killed in the attack by an Israeli drone. The strike fuels widespread fears that the nearly three-month-old Israel-Hamas war could become a wider regional conflict.

Hamas said the killing would not lead to its defeat, while Hezbollah vowed Aruri's death would not go "unpunished".

Hezbollah called it "a serious assault on Lebanon ... and a dangerous development in the course of the war".

Lebanese Prime Minister Najib Mikati condemned the killing and said it "aims to draw Lebanon" further into the Israel-Hamas war.

In a call with Israeli war cabinet member Benny Gantz after the strike, French President Emmanuel Macron urged Israel to "avoid any escalatory attitude, particularly in Lebanon".

Since the fighting began on October 8, the fighting has been concentrated a few kilometres from the border but on several occasions Israel's air force hit Hezbollah targets deeper in Lebanon.

Earlier in the day, Hezbollah said its fighters carried out several attacks along the Lebanon-Israel border targeting Israeli military posts. It comes as Israeli troops announced they had also killed a Hamas commander who helped lead the October 7 attack.

Adil Mismah, the Nukhba Company Commander of the city of Deir al-Balah, was "eliminated," Israeli Defense Forces said via social media.

Mismah had led terrorists into the Kibbutz Kissufim and ordered other gunmen to ravage the communities of Nirim and Be'eri, according to The Jerusalem Post.

The commander was slain in an air strike directed by Israeli ground troops, officials said.

Drugs fear unfounded

A chemical used in the diabetes drug Ozempic and the weight-management drug Wegovy is not associated with an increased risk for suicidal thoughts, US researchers say.

The Case Western Reserve School of Medicine findings about the chemical – known as semaglutide – is significant because this summer the European Medicines Agency (EMA) launched an investigation of its potential dangers.

Semaglutide is a chemical of the glucagon-like peptide receptor (GLP-1R) that helps regulate blood sugar in type 2 diabetes and reduces appetite.

After examining about two million patients, the research team found no evidence to support the EMA's concern that semaglutide may cause suicidal ideations.

Nostradamus' 2024 prophecy comes true

Ben Cost - New York Post

It was a literally groundbreaking prophecy.

As if Nostradamus' foretellings weren't eerily accurate enough, the iconic astrologer was apparently right on the money with yet another apocalyptic prophecy just hours into 2024.

Also known as the Prophet Of Doom, the 16th-century French philosopher is best known for his foreboding forecasts, which he chronicled in his 1555 text "Les Propheties".

These 943 verses are somewhat too vague to be sure, but Nostradamus has been credited with predicting everything from the Rise Of Adolf Hitler to Covid-19 like a 450-year-old Century "Simpsons" cartoon.

This time, the Frenchman was credited with forecasting the powerful earthquake that rocked Japan on New Year's Day. Outlining his predictions for 2024, the oracle wrote, "The dry Earth will become more parched and there will be great floods."

The psychic's followers reckoned that he could've been referring to the 7.5 magnitude tremor that struck the nation's Western coast, killing 48 people, toppling buildings and sparking 1m-high tsunamis.

According to reports, residents in coastal communities fled to higher ground as the waves battered the coast, sweeping houses and cars into the sea.

Nostradamus' prediction was apparently not the only harbinger of a seismic calamity.

Over the summer, divers in Taiwan encountered an injured giant oarfish, the "Doomsday fish" which is said to be a sign of impending earthquakes.

BYD electric vehicles waiting to be loaded on a ship are stacked at the international container terminal of Taicang Port at Suzhou Port, China.

BYD overtakes Tesla in drive for EV power

Rebecca Elliott

Chinese automaker BYD for the first time topped Tesla as the world's largest seller of electric vehicles on a quarterly basis, a sign of China's emerging strength in the global market for battery-powered cars.

BYD reported selling more than 526,000 fully electric vehicles in the fourth quarter of 2023, compared with Tesla's sales of nearly 485,000 for the same period.

Tesla remained ahead of BYD for the full year though.

Elon Musk's electric-car maker said it delivered about 1.8 million EVs worldwide in 2023, meeting its full-year guidance and slightly beating Wall Street's expectations.

The figure was 38 per cent higher than the previous year, showing that Tesla's growth rate slowed slightly as the company has entered an increasingly competitive chapter defined by more gradual expansion and slimmer profit margins.

By comparison, the Warren Buffett-backed BYD sold nearly 1.6 million battery-powered vehicles last year, up more than 70 per cent over 2022. Overall sales of more than three million new-energy vehicles in 2023 were up 62 per cent from a year earlier.

Though nearly 90 per cent of BYD's sales still came from China in December, its exports have been growing fast – overseas sales in the second half of 2023 more than tripled from a year earlier.

Tesla's results come as concerns are growing on Wall Street about the level of demand for the company's cars – and electric vehicles more broadly – in the year ahead.

The electric-car market has shown signs of cooling after a period of heady growth that has driven robust profit margins for Tesla.

In the US, some automakers are finding fewer people are ready to go electric than they expected, as anxieties about finding enough places to publicly charge persist and higher interest rates make cars more difficult to afford.

Rival electric-vehicle maker Rivian Automotive delivered 50,122 EVs last year, missing Wall Street's expectations. Its vehicle sales for the fourth quarter fell 10 per cent over the third quarter, despite an increase in factory output.

Other major car companies are expected to report year-end sales figures for the US this week.

Abroad, competition continues to intensify in the EV space.

Tesla's share of China's electric-vehicle market has held relatively steady, ticking up to nearly 12 per cent in the first 11 months of 2023, from almost 11 per cent in the same period the year prior. Full-year sales figures for the country have yet to be reported.

Tesla's shares kicked off 2024 in the red amid widespread declines on the tech-focused Nasdaq index.

Tesla shares roughly doubled in value in 2023 as the company slashed prices to juice demand and Wall Street regained confidence in the company's ability to execute on its longer-term plans.

Tesla aims to develop autonomous cars and halve production costs for its next generation of vehicles, which is widely expected to include a more affordable car.

In the near term, many investors are bracing for a tougher year ahead. Tesla delivered its first Cybertruck utility vehicles to customers late last year, a milestone for a company that hadn't rolled out a new passenger-vehicle model in three years.

Meanwhile, Tesla's steep price cuts over the past year have squeezed the company's once industry-leading operating margin, which as of the third quarter had fallen more in line with other major automakers.

Some on Wall Street question how much more room Tesla has to grow without another less expensive car in its line-up. Its Model 3 sedan and Model Y crossover made up 96 per cent of Tesla's global deliveries last year.

The least expensive Model 3 starts at about $39,000 ($57,500) in the US.

Tesla is scheduled to report year-end financial results on January 24.

Iron ore majors remain strong

Valerina Changarathil

The strong outperformance of iron ore majors in 2023 is likely to run for at least the next six months with China's steel production at "robust levels and expected to move higher", analysts at Citi say.

While slowing global growth is expected to be a headwind for metals this year, the momentum underpinning China's steel build-up and potential higher than expected earnings are strong tailwinds for the sector.

It comes as China's port inventories of iron ore are struggling to recover given ongoing supply-side tightness.

Citi's research head Paul McTaggart said the broker was looking for a reversal in iron ore/metals performance – but not until well into the second half of this year.

"In addition, consensus estimates for iron ore prices in Q4 CY23 and 1H CY24 look too low, so earnings momentum for the iron ore exposures is expected to remain positive in the first months of CY24."

On Wednesday, iron ore futures on the Singapore exchange were stronger at around $142.55 a tonne – close to its 21-month high of $143 a tonne a day earlier.

These prices are still higher than first-half consensus iron ore price forecast of $108/tonne and Citi's estimate of $125 a tonne.

That milestone on Tuesday triggered record closing prices for Rio Tinto at $136.57 and Fortescue at $29.39.

Both are tracking losses on Wednesday afternoon – in line with the overall ASX 200 slump of more than 1 per cent. Rio is down near $134.89 and Fortescue near $28.99.

On Wednesday, Fortescue confirmed it is "on target for normal operations to resume today" in WA's Pilbara region after a derailment on Saturday. No one was injured in the incident that involved multiple iron ore cars derailed about 150km south of Port Hedland. The incident did not have an impact on December or first-half shipped tonnes, but it's not clear if January exports are affected.

Citi retained its buy rating on Rio Tinto and left BHP at neutral.

Don't click! Parcel delivery texts to stop in bid to beat scams

Jared Lynch

E-commerce companies are set to phase out text messages alerting people of when parcels are likely to be delivered this year in an attempt to close a common entry point for cyber criminals.

Richard Thame, chief executive of Singapore Post-owned Couriers Please, expects more companies to switch to Amazon-style app notifications.

"It's very rare for consumers in advanced overseas economies to get a tracking link via SMS," Mr Thame said.

"Clickable links on mobile devices will die off over the next year. Its life has probably been prolonged here in Australia."

"And I think there's a whole new generation of consumers who are using social platforms, so I think the next stage is that more seamless integration with the various other social platforms as well."

SMiShing, a variant of phishing, is a common tactic cyber criminals use, involving sending simple text messages with an urgent "call to action", such as asking where they would like a parcel delivered or to unlock and verify an account.

Once a fraudulent link is clicked, hackers can gain access to personal information, and mobile phones, banking apps and email inboxes, potentially fleecing people of their life savings.

In the first 10 months of last year, Australians reported more than 11,000 parcel delivery scams to Scamwatch, with more than $720,000 lost.

It is understood many more scams are unreported out of embarrassment.

People are at greatest risk of falling victim to the scams during peak delivery periods such as Christmas, when they might not scrutinise SMS alerts as closely.

Scammers are also more sophisticated at impersonating legitimate delivery providers, such as Australia Post, making it harder for customers to tell what is genuine.

Fake invoicing is a common type of scam that has hit car dealers, real estate agents and customers.

Customers are advised to verify bank account details when a payment is requested in writing via email to mitigate the risk of such attacks.

The Australian Competition and Consumer Commission offers similar advice in regard to SMS parcel delivery scams.

"Never click on links in text messages or emails, even if you're expecting a delivery," ACCC deputy chair Catriona Lowe said.

NATIONAL TELEVISION WRITER SIOBHAN DUCK SHARES HER PICKS FOR THE WEEK AHEAD

CHANGING ENDS

9PM, WEDNESDAY, ABC
Comedian Alan Carr walks us through the trials and tribulations of growing up in working-class Britain during the 1980s. Here, Carr is the narrator of his life story, providing viewers with humorous insights on the homophobia and bullying he endured in small-town Dorset. The dynamic between a young Carr (played beautifully by Oliver Savell) and his soccer club manager father feels similar to what unfolded in Billy Elliott with the uber-masculine Graham Carr (Shaun Dooley), struggling to understand his theatrical son's ambitions.

GRAND DESIGNS: TRANSFORMATIONS

8PM, THURSDAY, ABC
This reboot of the popular Foxtel lifestyle series features two new hosts, Anthony Burke and Yasmine Ghoneim, and a shift in focus from singular lavish renovations to smaller-scale projects with out-there designs. Case in point is this update of a Sydney beach house, where Nina and Trent have opted for an "child unfriendly" aesthetic despite having a very active young son. The whole house is an impractical stark white, apart from the many pricey marble fixtures – putting a strain on their budget (and their building foundations).

THE GENTLE ART OF SWEDISH DEATH CLEANING

10.30PM, SUNDAY, SBS & SBS ON DEMAND
Amy Poehler narrates this sweetly poignant series about people looking to streamline their lives with a Marie Kondo-esque clean-out overseen by three experts, an organiser, a psychologist and a designer. As the title suggests, this formidable trio practises the Swedish art of death cleaning. Essentially they help people organise their homes ahead of their inevitable demise so that their loved ones won't be faced with the task. Ultimately the process,

HOME & AWAY

7PM, MONDAY, SEVEN
Over the years, fans have been kept on the edge of their seats by cliffhangers involving floods, fires, mudslides, sieges and assorted wedding day disasters in Summer Bay. This opening episode of 2024 picks up the pieces of a finale involving the romantic getaway from hell of Cash (Nicholas Cartwright) and Eden (Stephanie Panozzo). Things were already off to a bad start for the lovebirds when Eden called Remi (Adam Rowland) to rescue her from roughing it. They then went from bad to worse when a pair of kidnappers threw Eden in the boot of a car alongside Remi's lifeless body. When the show returns, we find a frantic Cash searching for the missing Eden. Playing Summer Bay's resident cop, Cartwright has "been involved in all the season finales" since he started on the series in 2021. "I think viewers have come to expect big things from a Home and Away season finale," he says. "We have a history of things getting really hot around the end of the year and I hope viewers are excited to see what we've done for the season 23 closer/24 opener!" Without giving away any spoilers, let's just say, if Eden hated camping before this, there's no way she will ever agree to go bush again.

transformation from conservative primary school teacher to a sexually experimental and obsessive stalker. In fairness to Evie, it's easy to understand her crush on Danny (Outlander's swarthy Sam Heughan). Not since Melrose Place has there been a neighbourhood with this many sexy secrets.

FOE

STREAMING FRIDAY, PRIME VIDEO
It seems to be the season for scenes featuring actors writhing around on the ground in the nude. First we had that cemetery scene with Barry Keoghan in Saltburn and now we have Paul Mescal giving the floor a good seeing to, while dripping in goo. It's just one of the many ways that this film – about a woman (Saoirse Ronan) left in the company of a robot while her husband (Mescal) completes a mission in outer space – will leave you feeling unsettled.

DOWNEY'S DREAM CARS

8.30PM, MONDAY, FOXTEL'S TURBO
A reformed party boy with a penchant for cutting-edge gadgets and a passion for saving the world; on paper, Robert Downey Jr has much in common with Iron Man, the role that put him back on the map in Hollywood after a well-publicised battle with addiction. In this documentary special, Downey throws open the doors to his very impressive garage, which houses the collection of luxury cars that he – with the help of experts in the world of automotive engineering – is converting from gas guzzlers into an environmentally friendly super fleet.

THE REAL HOUSEWIVES OF BEVERLY HILLS

STREAMING THURSDAY, BINGE
As we near the end of another explosive season, there have been two clear standouts for most valuable player. Firstly Kyle, whose real-life relationship breakdown has grabbed headlines and formed the backdrop to most of the drama. And then there's Sutton. Once again this slightly loopy Southern Belle has offered plenty of meme-worthy moments. Her unique approach to an argument (simply repeating the same phrase over and over until her opponents completely lose their cool) is bizarrely effective.

SCREW

STREAMING THURSDAY, BRITBOX
Unlike a lot of prison dramas – which tend to follow the inmates – this British series focuses on the so-called "screws" (that's jailhouse speak for officers). Here we find Leigh Henry (Jamie-Lee O'Donnell) and her various colleagues struggling to maintain their control over their wing in a men's prison when they discover there's a rat in their ranks. Look, it's no Wentworth or Time (both of which can be found on Binge and are well worth a look, if you haven't already), but it's still an entertaining glimpse into the pressure cooker of life behind bars.

THE COUPLE NEXTDOOR

NEW EPISODE STREAMING FRIDAY, BINGE

MOVIE REVIEWS LEIGH PAATSCH

Driving force

High speed excitement will accelerate the heartbeats of all, not just petrolheads

If the life of legendary Italian car impresario Enzo Ferrari was a motor race, then the engrossing new movie which bears his (brand)name takes in only one lap of the circuit.

It is certainly not a victory lap. And it is by no means the fastest lap.

However, it is the most crucial lap completed during the Ferrari life story: the distance of which will take in the calendar year of 1957.

If Enzo Ferrari (played with fastidious poise and restraint by an impressive Adam Driver) does not end that year as the head of a viable car manufacturing company, then everything he has worked for will be pulled off the road and stripped for parts.

With his business teetering on the edge of ruin – too few cars are being sold to the public, and too few races are being won on the track – Ferrari takes out an audacious, make-or-break bet. His immediate livelihood and ongoing legacy will all come down to the performance of his team in one event of the 1957 season: a notoriously dangerous, all-day road race across Italy known as the Mille Miglia.

Ferrari's best drivers and fastest cars are assembled and unleashed upon the unpredictably twisting, turning and undulating roads of rural Italy. It is virtually guaranteed that not all men or machines gathered at the start of the Mille Miglia will be there at the finish.

This was an era where the death of a driver in the pursuit of championship glory was deemed acceptable collateral damage by both team owners and the general public alike.

Adam Driver as Enzo Ferrari in filmmaker Michael Mann's movie Ferrari.

As for the cars, these open-topped chariots offered little in the way of protection for those steering them. Seat belts were not an option. (At the time, it was believed a driver stood more chance of surviving a wreck if he was thrown clear of the wreckage.)

As for the brakes, gears, tyres or structural soundness, let's just say each component could come, go and return at a moment's notice.

Whether the action is taking place on a test circuit, a racetrack or the open road, any sequence in which a four-wheeled Ferrari creation is barreling along at high speed is an incredibly exciting, imposing and rather stressful experience.

To provide some necessary contrast – and for that matter, relief – Ferrari the movie studiously fills in some of the blanks of Ferrari the man.

Enzo's long-neglected wife Laura (a stunning Penelope Cruz) couldn't care less about her spouse's exalted status as "the second most famous man in Italy to the Pope". She is too busy keeping their business afloat, keeping their household going, and keeping the memory of their recently deceased son alive for another day.

Shortly after we first meet Laura, she pulls a gun on her husband for a relatively minor misdemeanour. Just wait until she finds out about the mistress (Shailene Woodley) and young child that Enzo has been hiding away for well over a decade.

This polished and captivating portrait of Enzo Ferrari and his sleek red racing works of motorised art is sure to be studied and replayed several times over by devout petrolheads.

While some may feel that acclaimed filmmaker Michael Mann lets a little too much of Enzo's domestic downtime into frame, these slower moments in a lesser gear make the racing scenes whoosh by with even more power under the hood.

FORD V FERRARI

All roads lead towards the 1966 edition of the Le Mans 24-hour motor race, where American giant Ford is looking to end the dominance of its Italian rival, Ferrari. It is here we find a well-matched Matt Damon (as gifted designer Carroll Shelby) and Christian Bale (as maverick driving ace Ken Miles) in fast, furious form.

A movie that keeps putting the foot down, even when it backs off the velocity.

An exciting time capsule of old-school F1 racing, focusing on the 1976 Drivers Championship. Two daredevils clear out from the pack. Their rivalry? Beyond intense. Their individual personalities? Beyond opposite.

Austrian ace Niki Lauda (Daniel Bruhl) plays the percentages, and lives only to drive.

Aaron Paul (Breaking Bad) plays an ex-con street racer looking for redemption in a cross-country crash-a-thon organised by a mystery man zillionaire (Michael Keaton). OK, so the script backfires. What about the stunts? Well, they more than deliver. All the fiery wrecks, sudden swerves and unplanned off-road departures were achieved without the aid of CGI. Co-stars Dominic Cooper.

THE BOYS IN THE BOAT (PG)

General release

This proudly old-fashioned true story of a longshot lunge at Olympic gold might seem undeniably corny to the naked eye. However, this remarkable tale will prove irresistibly compelling to anyone whose spiritual sporting calling is to always side with the underdog.

Under the straightforward direction of George Clooney (who remains strictly behind the camera here), we learn how Team USA took out one of rowing's most revered events at the 1936 Olympics in Berlin. Not with the usual crew of privileged oarsmen from elite colleges who had trained their entire lives to reach the pinnacle of their sport.

Nope, America's Men's Eight crew was comprised of a bunch of rookies, who just a year before comprised a lowly reserve crew at the University of Washington. Somehow, these green kids rocketed through the ranks of rowing to challenge and beat the world's best. It is a singular achievement that is as awesome as it is baffling.

Touse a cricketing analogy, the victory chronicled here is the equivalent of a suburban second eleven representing Australia at a World Cup and winning the whole darn thing. With so many characters involved in and out of the boat, worthwhile development of most figures is near impossible. Only Joel Edgerton's nuggety head coach and Callum Turner's poor-boy raw recruit register with any real impact.

However, the open-water racing is surprisingly exciting throughout, allowing Clooney the licence to let this stirring tale of perspiration, deprivation and inspiration pretty much tell itself.

STARS

OSCAR CAINER
For free forecasts go to ozfree.cainer.com

Today, as Mars (the power planet) moves into earthy Capricorn, it gears up to create a talent triangle. This formation involves Mars and Jupiter working in harmony, encouraged by the cosmic teacher, Saturn. Together, they paint a picture of a growing confidence in our ability to turn ideas into progress. But we can't sit back and just hope for the best. The more enthusiasm we apply to our work, the better, and the faster the results of our efforts will be seen.

ARIES MAR 21–APR 20

There's no point in me telling you that today is the first day of the rest of your life. You're very familiar with the expression. You know that even though it might feel similar to yesterday (and tomorrow), it's not. Which emphasises the value of today's forecast. The new year is under way and your ruler, Mars, is playing a key role in the exciting cosmic outlook. You have the freedom to transform what you want in your world. Why not choose today to be the day to start turning your life into what you want it to be?

LEO JUL 24–AUG 23

Before you can set out on the high-seas adventure of 2024, you need to get some work done on your boat. For now, you're in a safe harbour getting on with some rather dull jobs. It's easy to think of other things to do (that would be much more fun), but the tasks you need to complete aren't as tedious as you think. Nor are they going to take long to finish. If you look towards the horizon, you'll get a feel for the opportunities ahead. Preparations you're doing now will enable you to sail out and seize them.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 23–DEC 21

The start of 2024 is a bit like one of those complicated jigsaws. You don't seem to have an image of what it will look like once it's complete. In fact, you're not even sure you've got all the pieces. You're managing to fit some parts together, but they won't join up into a cohesive picture. It's frustrating. Yet with power planet Mars moving into earthy Capricorn, you'll find it easier to concentrate. If you stay motivated, you'll soon find a way to put everything together in a way that makes perfect sense.

TAURUS APR 21–MAY 21

Why do we think being stubborn is wrong? I think it's a quality that needs to be appreciated. So many people give up at the first obstacle, or change their minds at the drop of a hat. Thank goodness for Taurus. You're not afraid to stand up for your beliefs. Right now though, it's worth questioning if this could be a time when a compromise would be more effective. A small concession could have positive effects today (and if needed, you can always go back to your original stance).

VIRGO AUG 24–SEP 23

It's all a matter of perspective. Depending on how we feel, and what we want to see, we view the situations we're dealing with very differently. When we're optimistic, we can find silver linings, even in difficult scenarios. But when we're not, it's as if we're wearing dark shades, which give everything a gloomy look. Today, as dynamic Mars enters earthy Capricorn, it brings the energy to fan a glimmer of hope into a realistic aspiration. With just a simple change of attitude, you can take steps to make your future brighter.

CAPRICORN DEC 22–JAN 20

Dynamic Mars enters your sign today, and as 2024 progresses, you'll feel increasingly aware that the sky has your best interests at heart. The cosmic support you're receiving will be reflected by the opportunities coming your way. If you're not yet feeling galvanised into action, you don't have long to wait. Meanwhile, try focusing on the potential available to you today. Even if it doesn't feel like much, it hides a small treasure, and with the right attitude, you can encourage it to grow into something valuable.

GEMINI MAY 22–JUN 22

Questions always pop up at the start of a new year. What should you be doing with your life? What do you need to feel fulfilled and happy? These kinds of ponderings are tricky as they can throw us into a quagmire of self-doubt. Does anyone feel successful all the time? I doubt it. The best strategy to follow is to be confident that whatever you're doing right now, and wherever you're doing it, it's the right thing to be doing. With this attitude any doubts will disappear and you'll be on the path to progress.

LIBRA SEP 24–OCT 23

It's astonishing how we sometimes find ourselves doing the opposite of what we know we should do. We step on the brake (rather than the accelerator). Or we say no to something we ought to say yes to. It's easy, with hindsight, to see we'd have been better off following a different course. Yet looking back with regret is never helpful. If you want to maximise the opportunities 2024 brings your way, you just need to forgive yourself and move on. With a clear conscience, you'll be unstoppable.

AQUARIUS JAN 21–FEB 19

There's no denying the fact that you're moving into the future. The new year stretches ahead of you like a blank canvas of possibilities. I hope you're ready, because there's no going back. If you're regretting a recent choice which left you feeling uncomfortable, as you move deeper into the new year you'll grow more at ease with it. Deep down, you're growing more confident you're on the right track. Today, as Mars moves into your neighbouring sign, even tentative steps forwards will take you further than you think.

CANCER JUN 23–JUL 23

You don't usually struggle to articulate your ideas. So, to find yourself unable to say what's in your heart is making you uneasy. You're worried that if you speak out, you'll cause an upset. You're probably right, yet your instincts are spot on and you're right to think something needs to be discussed. Be as diplomatic as you can be today (but don't be afraid to be bold). You've got the insight and skills to be able to talk about the elephant in the room. Once it's in the open, everyone will be relieved, and able to move on.

SCORPIO OCT 24–NOV 22

How badly do you want what you want? Hmm... Instead of how badly, maybe we should use more positive language. How deeply maybe? What's important, is that you remember you don't need to focus on one thing to the detriment of everything else. The start of 2024 is about aspiring to achieve your deepest desire. You need to be dedicated (even when the road ahead isn't smooth), but stay open-minded enough to be able to adapt your approach. The cosmos helps you find the right balance today.

PISCES FEB 20–MAR 20

We talk about there being no time like the present. But it's hard to pinpoint when the present actually is. It was certainly a different present when the saying originated more than 450 years ago! Maybe you're better off going along with whatever 2024 brings your way, and trust that you'll recognise the time to instigate change when it appears? On second thoughts, don't do that. If you're meant to wait, the cosmos will create distractions, but if there are none of those around today, seize the moment.

Great barra fishing in river

Don't you just hate it when the wet season proper still hasn't turned up by January.

By "wet season proper", I mean the arrival of a monsoon across the Top End, and particularly over the big river flood plains from Arnhem Land down to Victoria River.

When Cyclone Jasper descended upon North Queensland, we all thought it would cross Cape York as a low depression system, reform into a cyclone and move across the Top End delivering monumental rainfall.

That's what we hoped anyway.

Instead, it was a fizzer as a cyclone but still hovered over Far North Queensland with rainfall bucketing down from Cooktown south to Townsville.

Notwithstanding the sad tragic circumstances associated with resulting floodwaters, it was a significant rain event that was welcomed by anglers.

So, what's the prognosis for the Top End?

According to the Bureau of Meteorology website, 50-100mm rainfall is the best we can expect over the next week or two.

In the meantime, neap tides this coming weekend offer great barra fishing options on the lower Adelaide River.

A notable feature of the lower Adelaide River is a tri-fecta of big creeks along the eastern shore: Wiltshire One Creek, Wiltshire Two Creek and Wiltshire Three Creek.

These creeks are only a couple of kilometres apart sequentially and, collectively, they are known as "The Wiltshires".

They are each several kilometres long with Wiltshire Two being navigable for at least 20km.

An interesting observation is that Wiltshire Two stops just short of breaking through into Chambers Bay and Van Diemen Gulf.

You can access The Wiltshires from two directions.

The quickest is by launching at Saltwater Arm boat ramp off Gunn Point Rd, motoring down and out of the arm and heading a kilometre across open water before entering the Adelaide River mouth and travelling another 5km to Wiltshire One.

A submerged big rock-bar extends right across Saltwater Arm just down from the boat ramp, and you'll need at least 25m of water to go over it sticking to the right-hand side.

It can be a bumpy ride to the Adelaide River mouth for a typical trailer boat, and a bit spooky in the wet season when there are storms about.

A few anglers prefer to launch at the Adelaide River Bridge ramp on the Arnhem Highway and belt down 80km to The Wiltshires.

The best fishing is usually during the last half of the outgoing tide.

Right now, with the predicted good water clarity, casting to snags and tidal creek mouths should yield some action.

Trolling too is a good way to fish The Wiltshires.

Not surprisingly, there are good troll runs just inside the mouth of each creek.

One of my favourites is the right bank heading up Wiltshire One. Basically, the troll starts just before you lose sight of the mouth as you round a bend and goes for about 300m.

My best success trolling The Wiltshires has been with Classic 120s 10+.

Casting to snags is the usual weedless soft plastic option, but well-placed suspending lures like the Killalure Flat Rat and Jackall Squirrel will catch barra in the timber if you fish them carefully.

An interesting phenomenon in respect of The Wiltshires is that they seem to take turns to fish the best.

One year, Wiltshire One might be the go-to creek and the next year it might be Wiltshire Two, and so on.

The beauty of them is you can boat a long way up each of them unimpeded.

Demise rumours all bull

Rumours surrounding a Darwin cricket club folding have been quashed.

University Bulls Cricket Club president has gone on record to reassure the club's members and supporters that his club is here to stay.

"We have big plans for the future and they definitely do not include folding," Aayush Sapkota said.

"I'm not sure where those rumours started or came from but they are not true."

Speculation of the club's demise popped up on a local cricket Facebook page on Friday December 29.

The post read: "Rumours are circulating that University Bulls Cricket Club has folded and that Waratah Warriors Cricket Club are in talks to take over the CDU facility."

The club has experienced recent success with their D-grade Men's team winning the 2022 premiership.

Sapkota expressed his desire for the club to continue its winning ways and growth.

"Plans are in the works and they will only make us bigger and better," he said.

"We're a small club, with four senior sides."

"We are always looking for more volunteers and players and I encourage anyone who wants to join us."

NT boys take on best

Darcy Jennings

The Territory's top teenage cricketers will be battling it out on the pitch at this year's Cricket Australia under-17 Male National Championships.

Making the 3643km trek down to Ballarat, in Victoria the players will play four round games and two finals matches, between January 4 and 11.

Spearheaded by U17 veteran and Waratah player Archie McCormick, the captain is confident in his squad.

"We have a really good group of players who all get along well," the 16-year-old told NT Cricket.

"We all play with and against each other, so we know our strengths and have the confidence to count on each other."

A squad jam-packed with experience, six of the 14 players will be pulling on the colours for a second time, with Nicholas Fleming sure to bring his knowledge from the recent U19's championship.

Coaching and in charge of the side is former Scotland national coach and Southern Districts man Anthony Judd.

A fierce competitor, the head coach isn't just looking for his team to compete; he wants wins.

"We all play with and against each other, so we know our strengths and have the confidence to count on each other," he told NT Cricket.

"Learning about being competition and how we will take it to opposition teams will give us the best chance of being successful."

Australian relishing the chance to go up against one of the game's all-time greats

Callum Dick

Jason Kubler was fighting a fierce first round battle against Aslan Karatsev on Show Court 1 when the roar came from inside Pat Rafter Arena.

He and Karatsev were forced to briefly pause their second set as the crowd next door erupted with delight, signalling Rafael Nadal's victory over Dominic Thiem.

Both men immediately knew what it meant. The winner would be facing one of the greatest of all time in the next round.

Suddenly the stakes were even higher.

"I think we both definitely knew that Rafa had won and that we were (going to play) Rafa – it was very obvious who won," Kubler said ahead of his Thursday night meeting with the 22-time Grand Slam champion.

"We had to stop play a couple of times because of it, in a couple of big moments in our match because the crowd was cheering for Rafa."

Kubler would go on to lose the second set in a close tie-breaker, however his Russian opponent went down with what looked to be a serious knee injury and was forced to retire from the match.

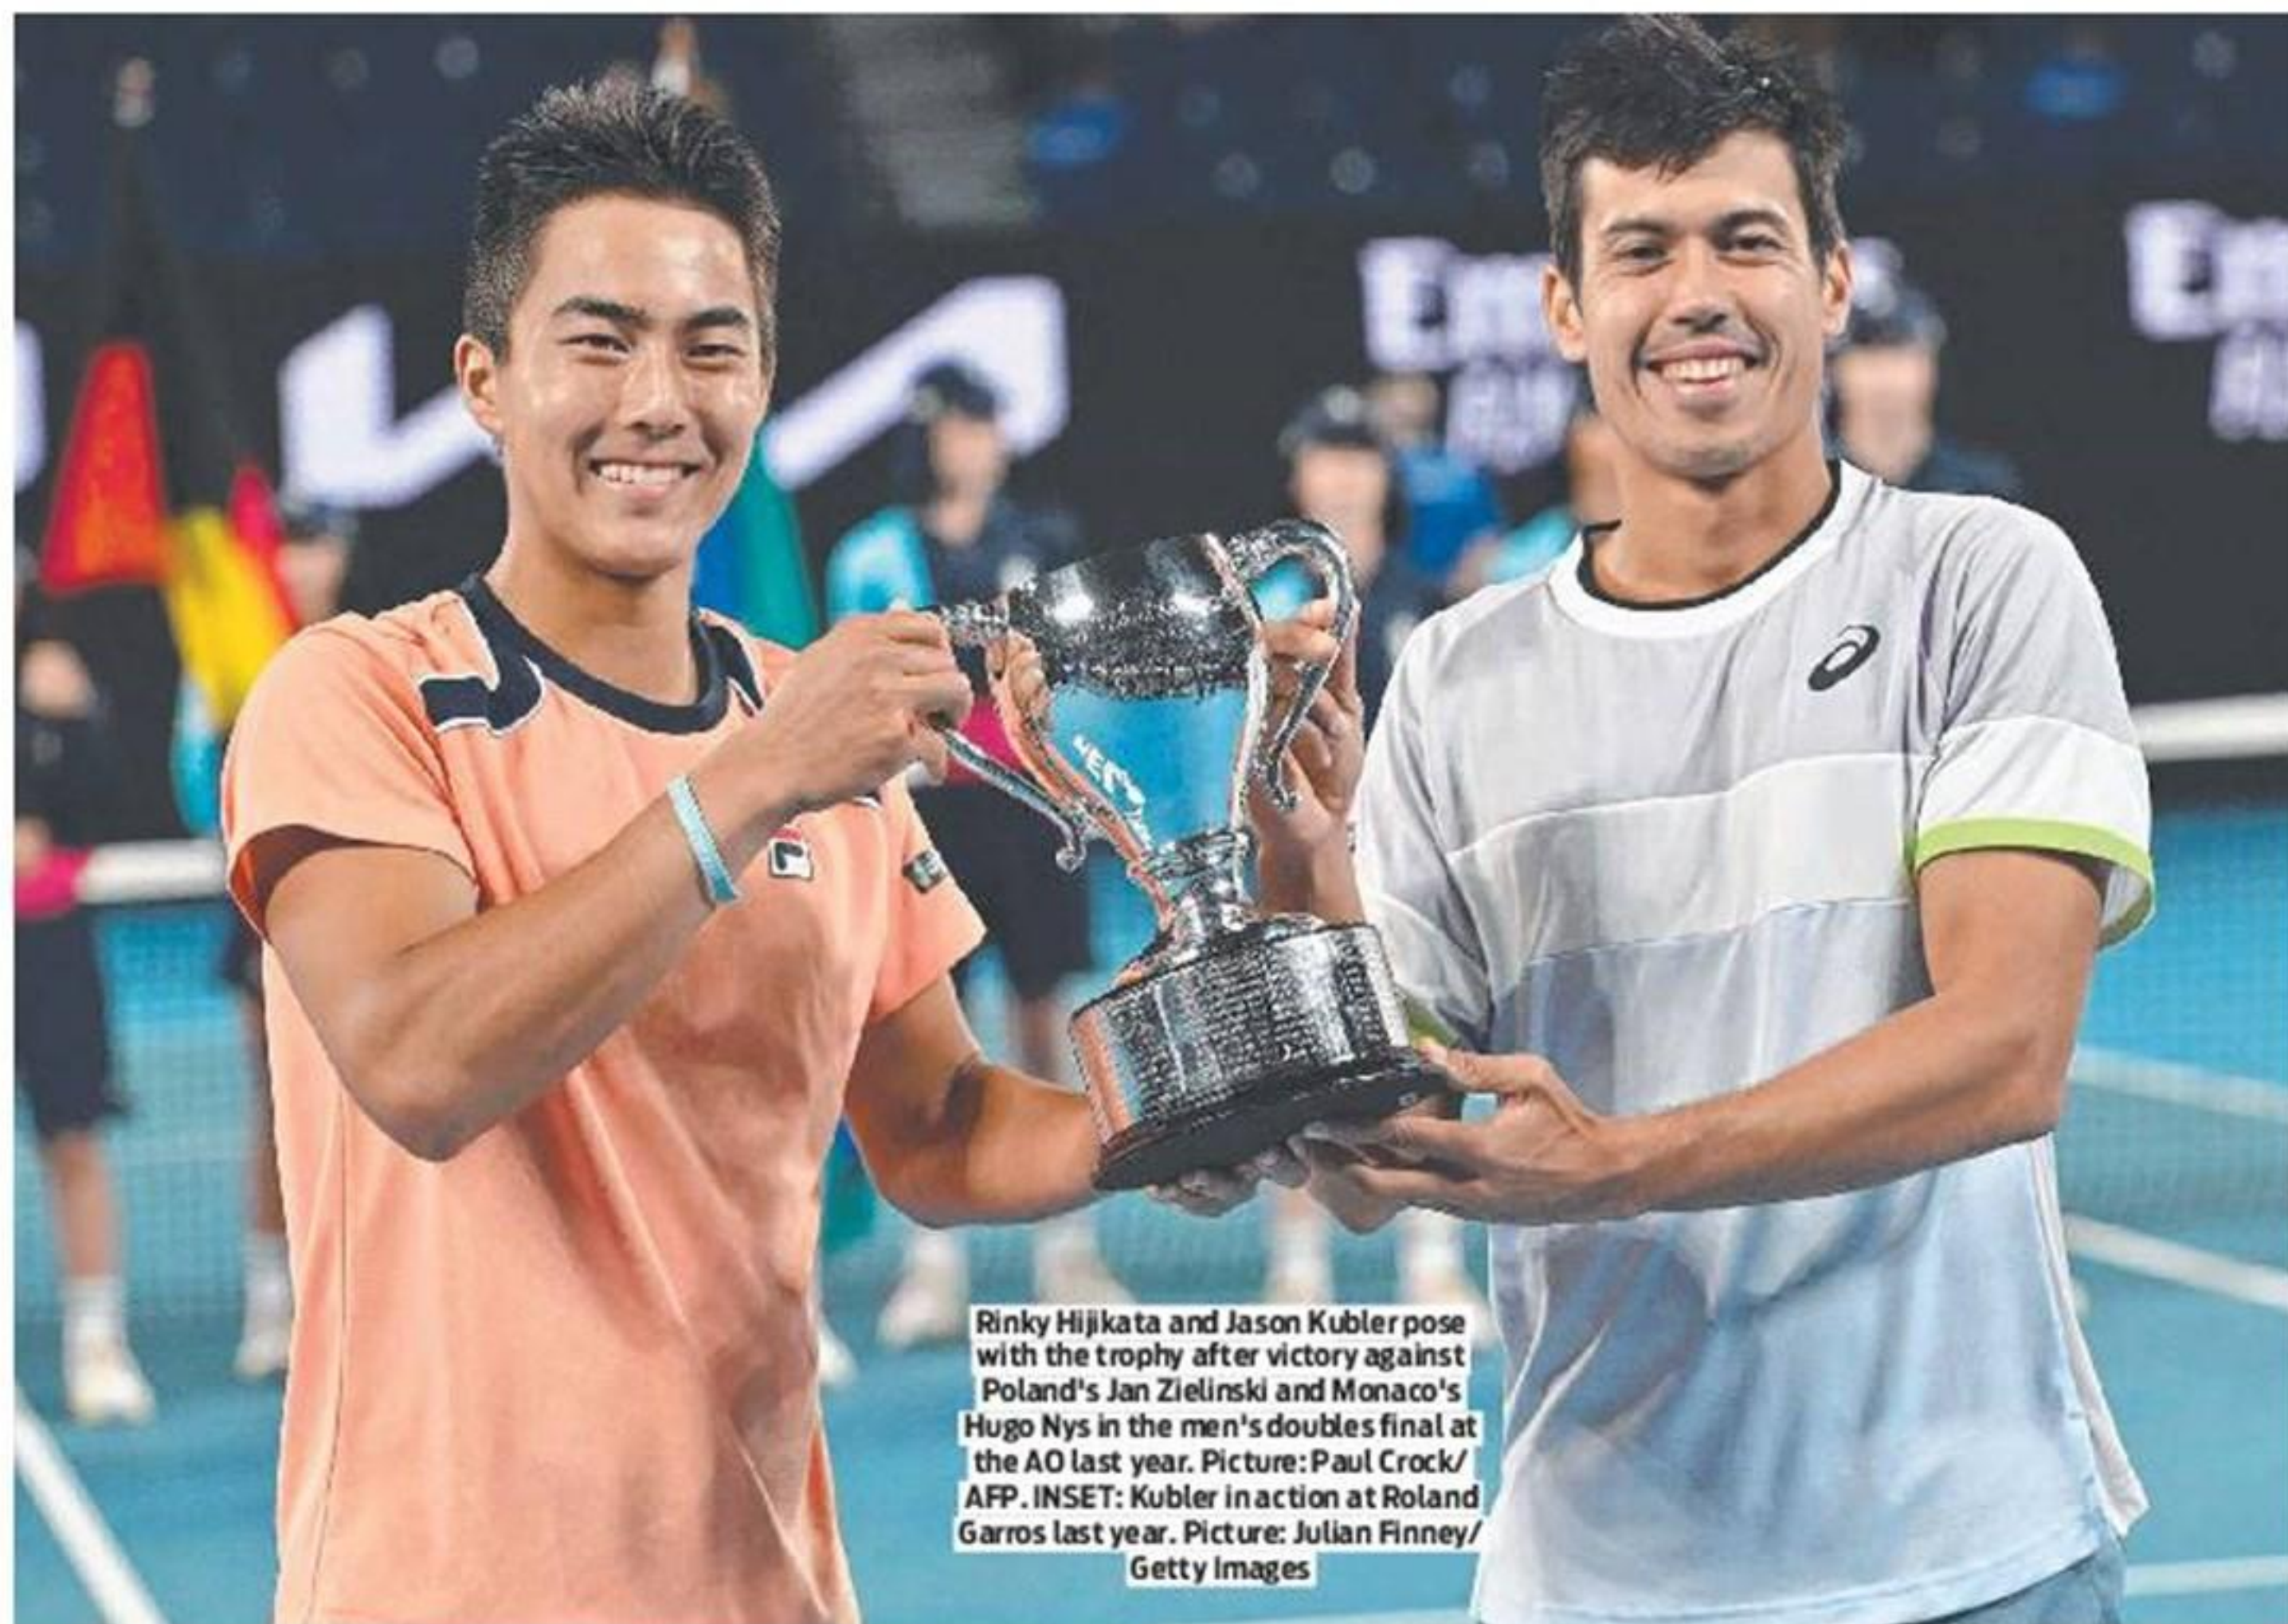

The stage was then set: Kubler versus Nadal. A Brisbane International second round clash set to divide the tennis diharders.

In Kubler they have the local hope, the Brisbane boy who trained on Pat Rafter Arena for more than a decade.

Then there is Nadal, the two-time Australian Open champion and arguably the most popular player in the sport's history, who could be playing Down Under for the final time this year.

Kubler heard the cheers. The "Rafa Rafa Rafa, Oi Oi Oi".

He will command serious home crowd support on Thursday night. But there will undoubtedly be pro-Nadal pockets within Pat Rafter Arena.

"To be honest if they cheer for him or me it's going to be special regardless," Kubler said.

"However the match or the crowd happens to be, the occasion is going to be special to me ... getting to play Rafa on my home court, so regardless of all the other outside stuff just that alone is special."

"I'm 30 now so any sort of big match against one of the legends of the sport is pretty cool."

"There's definitely going to be some nerves that's for sure, because of how great a player he is, but at the same time I honestly believe I have nothing to lose. I can go out there and lose 6-1, 6-1 and not many people are going to bat an eye about it."

"I'm just going to go out and enjoy it. I trained here for 10 years of my life so it's a pretty special moment to play one of the biggest names in our sport on this court."

"Hopefully lots of people can make the occasion even more special. I'm sure it's something I'll remember for the rest of my life."

On the comeback trail from a seventh serious knee injury, Kubler is taking it one match at a time as he prepares for the Australian Open. There is perhaps no sterner fitness test in world tennis than against Nadal.

He enters with no expectations on his shoulders – and that's the way he likes it.

If there was ever a time to strike down one of the winningest players in tennis history, Thursday night in front of a sold out Pat Rafter Arena would be it.

"If I won the match it would definitely be the biggest occasion," Kubler said.

"I don't think it would be much bigger than that, beating one of the best players ever."

Osaka knocked out of Brisbane event

Returning star Naomi Osaka showed glimpses of her best but was knocked out of the Brisbane International in a big-serving clash by a fellow former world No.1 mounting her own comeback.

Former US Open and Wimbledon finalist Karolina Pliskova blasted past Osaka after a slow start to win 3-6, 7-6 (7-4) 6-4 on Wednesday and reach the round of 16 after playing her first competitive match since September due to a wrist injury.

The victory keeps the Czech star's hopes of a Brisbane International three-peat alive after she won the previous two editions of the tournament in 2019 and 2020.

Osaka only gave up four unforced errors in a clinical first-set performance before Pliskova upped the ante on her serve, winning 24 of 26 points on her first serve to force a tie-break, which she won before breaking Osaka early in the final set.

Pliskova, 31, gave an unusually passionate celebration after claiming the second-set tie-break before she continued to serve out the game with all of her trademark power and aggression.

Nadal delivers a demolition job

Martin Gabor

Former world No.1 Rafael Nadal has put the rest of the men's tour on notice with an emphatic 7-5 6-1 win over Dominic Thiem in his first singles match in almost a year.

The Spanish maestro has been sidelined by a chronic hip injury since last year's Australian Open, but you wouldn't have known after he blasted the Austrian off the court at the Brisbane International.

The 37-year-old set the tone with a trademark forehand winner to take the opening point, with Nadal untroubled on serve as the pair traded holds before he claimed the all-important break in the 12th game to snatch the first set.

Spain's Rafael Nadal celebrates

It was a procession from there, with the 22-time grand slam winner breaking twice in the second set against the man he beat in consecutive French Open finals.

"Today is honestly an emotional and important day for me after probably one of the toughest years of my tennis career, without a doubt," Nadal said after the match.

"I had the chance to come back after a year and play in front of an amazing crowd and play, I think, at a very positive level."

"On the first day, it is something that makes us feel proud. Myself, all the team and family that have been there every single day during the past year."

"The first set was equal, with both of us serving well and more or less winning on serve."

"I was able to have that break at 6-5, so that makes the difference."

"Honestly, I know Dominic has gone through some hard times with injuries too, so I'm happy to see him on court and I wish him the very best for the season." Some of Nadal's groundstrokes made it feel like he'd gone back in time to when he was simply unbeatable, which makes you wonder how good he can be once he gets more match practice under his belt.

Nadal had only just made his competitive return in the doubles a couple of days earlier after a horrific run of injuries, and he'll next face Aussie Jason Kubler on Thursday.

In other results in Brisbane, Rinky Hijikata eliminated fellow Aussie Thanasi Kokkinakis in straight sets, while two-time Australian Open winner Victoria Azarenka also booked her spot in the round of 16.

Giddey stars in thriller

Josh Giddey has delivered his best performance of what has been a difficult season as the Oklahoma City Thunder secured an impressive win over Eastern Conference powerhouse Boston on Wednesday.

The 21-year-old drained four threes on his way to a season-high 23 points to go with eight rebounds and six assists.

It helped propel the Thunder to a 127-123 win over the Celtics in what lived up to the billing of a top of the table clash. The Celtics sit first in the East while the Thunder are second in the Western Conference.

The Thunder looked set for a comfortable win after extending their lead out to 18 points in the fourth quarter only for the Celtics to mount a late comeback, capitalising on a series of turnovers from Oklahoma to move to within two points with a minute to go.

The Thunder settled, however, and closed the game out thanks to 36 points from point guard Shai Gilgeous-Alexander and two clutch late free throws from Giddey.

It was their fifth straight win, a run that includes beating the current top teams in the East and West plus the reigning champions.

It continues a strong run of recent form for Giddey who equalled a career-high four three-pointers in a 20-point display against the Brooklyn Nets on New Year's Day.

The NBA world was impressed with what they saw from the Australian who has struggled this season and found his minutes reduced.

That has prompted speculation the Thunder, who hold a bounty of draft picks, could be motivated to make a trade before the deadline.

Wednesday's performance will go a long way to showing Giddey has an important role alongside Thunder trio Gilgeous-Alexander, Chet Holmgren and Jalen Williams.

Sylph VI skipper and owner Robert 'Bob' Williams, with his cat Oli, created a new record for the boat – the slowest trip in the Australian blue water classic. Picture: Adam Yip

Oli the cat has last meow

The two-hander Sylph VI – with Oli the cat aboard – was the 85th and last boat to finish the 2023 Sydney to Hobart to a hero's welcome while several big names have already confirmed they will miss the 2024 edition south.

Emotional skipper Bob Williams, crewmate Chris Warren and feline Oli the cat arrived in Hobart at 8.26am on Wednesday with a record for the boat – its slowest ever trip in the Australian blue water classic.

The agonisingly slow journey saw them arrive seven days, 19 hours, 26 minutes and 15 seconds after Sylph started the race at 1pm on Boxing Day.

Sylph's previous slowest Sydney to Hobart race was set in 1962 when she took seven days, 17 hours, 13 minutes and two seconds.

But there was one good bit of news for the team on the race tailender – they just managed to avoid finishing last in the PHS handicap race.

Sylph VI's slow progress saw her finish second last in the PHS handicap division, won by Will Vicars' Oron Drumfire, with David Hows' Silver Fern earning the dubious honour of finishing last in this division of the race.

"I think it's quite amazing the way people have taken to Oli," said Williams, a retired naval officer.

"He's just a part of my crew, wherever I sail."

Sylph VI's trip was five days slower than Christian Beck's LawConnect, which pipped Andoo Comanche by 51 seconds in the closest finish in decades for the line honours on December 28 at 8.03am.

Aussies' Asia Cup belief

Qatar 'a happy place'

Martin Gabor

It's been nine years since their famous Asian Cup win on home soil and Socceroos star Craig Goodwin "genuinely believes" the Aussies can go all the way at this year's tournament in Qatar that begins next week.

The Socceroos are one of the favourites to win the event on the back of their strong World Cup showing in 2022 and they'll be out to make an early statement when they face Bahrain in a warm-up match on Sunday morning.

The match will be a great chance for some of the players to get used to the hot conditions in the Middle East – something Goodwin has grown accustomed to at his Saudi club Al-Wehda where he scored a goal and set another up last week.

The Socceroos are 25th in the FIFA rankings, with Japan, Iran and South Korea the only Asian nations ahead of them.

It's why there's a quiet optimism they can go all the way having reached the quarter-finals in 2019 when they were bundled out by the UAE.

"I genuinely believe we have the squad to win the Asian Cup," Goodwin said.

"It's going to be hard and difficult but we have a good group with a good mentality. We have the potential to do something special here."

Australia opens its campaign against India next Saturday before taking on Syria and Uzbekistan in Group B.

It's easy to get caught up in the emotion of the Socceroos returning to Qatar, where they got past the group stage and were eventually knocked out by Lionel Messi and Argentina, who went on to win the World Cup, but Goodwin said it was a clean slate this time around.

"Qatar has been a happy place for myself and for us but it's about coming in with a different mindset and mentality. Coming in with more hunger to do more great things here," he said.

"None of us can get caught up in the thought process that we've done well here in the past and that it's going to come easy."

"We have aspirations to win the Asian Cup and to do that we have to have a ruthless mentality and to be focused on what's coming next."

"Although we're very happy with what we've done here in the past, that is in the past and we've got the here and now to focus on to try to bring the Asian Cup back to Australia."

Chidiac's desperate for more game time

Alex Chidiac doesn't normally get nervous but with so little time spent on a football field last year that was how she felt sitting on the bench in her Melbourne Victory kit.

The 24-year-old, who has donned the Matildas jersey 33 times since 2015, is just desperate to get back to doing the thing she loves – playing football.

Chidiac was named in the World Cup squad but given limited minutes off the bench in three matches.

After the World Cup she was relegated to the bench at the Mexican club at which she was on loan and dumped from the Matildas squad for the two-match friendly series against Canada last month.

She was eventually recalled to the Matildas following injuries to Sam Kerr and Holly McNamara.

The dynamic midfielder has re-signed with Melbourne Victory in the hope of increasing her game time and getting her mojo back.

Chidiac launched her professional football career in 2014 at age 15 with her home club Adelaide United in the then W-League. She played nine games and scored a goal.

Snoop out for Games scoop as NBC reporter

Rapper Snoop Dogg will be a special reporter for US broadcaster NBC at the Paris Olympics this year.

The network has announced he will reprise his star turn at the Tokyo Games that delighted viewers.

"I grew up watching the Olympics and am thrilled to see the incredible athletes bring their A-game to Paris," Snoop Dogg said.

NBC's vice president of Olympic production, Molly Solomon, said Snoop's commentating on dressage at the Tokyo Olympics had gone viral and "earned Snoop a job as our special correspondent in Paris".

"We don't know what the heck is going to happen every day but we know he will add his unique perspective to our re-imagined Olympic prime-time show," Solomon said.

In a video, the Drop It Like It's Hot rapper brings his signature style and humour to interviews with athletes.

Teen Littler takes aim at darts title

Teenage darts sensation Luke Littler has brushed aside eighth seed Rob Cross to advance into the final of the world championship.

Littler started nervously and lost the first set to Cross, the 2018 world champion, who averaged 108.7 to his younger counterpart's average of 103.2.

But the 16-year-old quickly found the form that has made him a household name in England. Though he averaged 98.7 to Cross' 108.3 in the second set, Littler nailed 75 per cent of his doubles while Cross had a sloppy conversion rate of just 29 per cent as the teen levelled the contest.

Despite Cross' best efforts – including an absurdly-high average of 114.5 in the fourth set – Littler gave his rival nothing as he won two consecutive sets to take a 3-1 lead.

Cross managed to snatch the fifth set despite averaging 91.7 to Littler's 98.2, but it only added fuel for the teenager to fire on the biggest stage.

Littler is to next meet the winner of the other semi final, which is between Scott Williams and world No.3 Luke Humphries, in the world championships final.

Aussie skipper Pat Cummins celebrates the wicket of Pakistan's Sajid Khan with teammates during the first day of the third Test at the SCG. Picture: AFP

Pat's 15 wickets in row

Skipper bags another five-for as Pakistan fights back

Australian captain Pat Cummins snared five wickets for the third innings in a row, but Pakistan fought back from early trouble (5-96) to finish on 313 on the opening day of the third Test at the SCG.

Losing three wickets for seven runs, the Aussies had Pakistan 9-227 before Aamer Jamal battered their bowlers with a remarkable 82 off 97, featuring nine fours and four sixes.

It was a maiden Test half-century in just his third match, with the 86-run partnership guiding Pakistan to a strong performance as Mohammad Rizwan and Agha Salman counter-attacked to help Pakistan battle back.

The hosts were 0-6 in reply at, with opener David Warner, playing in his final Test, making all the runs. Cummins followed up his 10 wickets in the second Test at the MCG with another five-for.

After being reduced to 5-96 for five, Rizwan and Salman took on the Australian bowling with a pulsating 94-run stand before Rizwan fell just before tea for 88.

At the interval, Pakistan was 199 for six with Salman on 36 and Sajid Khan seven. The tourists battled on to be 9/261. Rizwan, who had been dropped for the first Test, blasted two sixes and 10 fours off 103 balls before he fell to a legside trap set by Cummins. Rizwan top-edged a pull shot for Josh Hazlewood to take the catch at fine leg after posting the highest individual score by a Pakistan batsman of the series.

Cummins made the breakthrough as he has done often throughout the series, taking his third wicket of the innings.

Pakistan made a disastrous start after winning the toss, losing four wickets in the opening session and skipper Shan Masood shortly after lunch for 35.

It was a rousing morning session for the Australians, who are looking to send off 37-year-old opening batsman David Warner as a winner in his home city in his 112th and final Test match.

Openers Abdullah Shafique and debutant Saim Ayub were dismissed inside the first two overs.

The out-of-form Shafique fell to the second ball of Mitchell Starc's opening over, needlessly playing a loose drive and nicking a catch to Steve Smith at second slip for a duck.

Ayub, brought in for Imrul-Hasan to make his Test debut, only lasted two balls before he fell to a Hazlewood out-swinger in the next over, snapped up behind by Alex Carey.

Pakistan lurched to four for two and for a time looked to be consolidating with Babar Azam playing three glorious cover drives to the ropes before he was out on first-hour drinks for 26.

Cummins appealed vociferously for lbw but was turned down by the umpire, only to seek a review and get the verdict he sought, leaving the tourists tottering at 3-39.

Shield rookies' Windies warm up

Ed Bourke

Promising Sheffield Shield batters Jack Clayton and Teague Wyllie will have a chance to impress the Australian selectors in a three-day tour game against the West Indies next week.

Peter Handscomb, who does not have a BBL contract this season, will lead a Cricket Australia XI at Adelaide's Karen Rolton Oval from January 12 as the inexperienced West Indies side prepares for the two-Test series in Adelaide and Brisbane.

Teague Wyllie

The left-handed Clayton, one of Queensland's top Shield performers this season, and Western Australian young gun Wyllie are the two hottest batting prospects named in a 12-man squad that also includes young Warriors opener Jayden Goodwin and Tasmanian duo Tim Ward and Jake Doran.

Clayton posted a century and three 50s in the first half of the red-ball season, while Wyllie last summer became the youngest batter since Ricky Ponting to score a Shield century but has failed to reach the milestone in 16 first-class matches since.

National selection panel chair George Bailey said he wanted to mix domestic cricket's most consistent performers with some recent Shield debutants for the tour match.

Victorian left-arm orthodox bowler Doug Warren, who has played two first-class games, is the only spinner named in the side, while towering WA left-arm quick Liam Haskett and NSW seamer Jack Nisbet are also Shield debutants.

"CA XI matches provide an excellent opportunity for some of our up-and-coming players on the domestic scene to face international opposition as well as rewarding consistent performers," Bailey said.

'Cool feeling': Aussie young gun's stellar comparison

Ed Bourke

Phoebe Litchfield says it's a "huge honour" to be compared to batting great Meg Lanning after her commanding century fired Australia to a 190-run win over India in the third ODI.

Australia secured a series whitewash in Mumbai after the 20-year-old combined with captain Alyssa Healy for a 189-run opening stand to set up a score of 7-338, with India bundled out for 148 in reply.

Litchfield was stranded for more than 30 minutes in the 90s as Australia at one stage lost 4-27, but she eventually got to her second ODI century and put the innings back on track with Ash Gardner (30 off 27) to post 119 off 125 balls, including 16 fours and a six.

The left-hander's 260 runs at 86.66 had her crowned player of the series as she also became the youngest Australian to pass 50 six times in ODIs, achieving the feat 58 days ahead of a 20-year-old Lanning.

Litchfield said it was a "cool feeling" to earn comparisons to Lanning and Belinda Clark after so quickly becoming one of Australia's best players.

"I looked up to Meg, and recently had Belinda Clark work with our Thunder group, so to be mentioned with those names is a huge honour," she said.

"But I'm trying to take it each day at a time and not think too much into it and just keep scoring runs."

She said her prolonged time in the 90s had been "stressful" but held her nerve after losing a procession of teammates in Healy, Ellyse Perry, Beth Mooney and Tahlia McGrath as India fought back with the ball.

"I thought I was going to bring it up with 'Pez', that was the fairytale, but it took me a long time to get to the hundred and it was nerve-racking to say the least," Litchfield said.

"With the wickets falling around me, it was a bit stressful, but I just stayed really calm. I probably scored each run in singles, just wanting to get there and make the most of that big partnership."

Australia was then at its most clinical with the ball in this series as Megan Schutt removed both Indian openers in her first spell before Georgia Wareham (3-23) and Alana King (2-21) combined to tear through the middle order.

The match also marked a return to form for Healy, who posted her first score above 50 in the format since her devastating 170 in the 2022 World Cup final in New Zealand.

The multi-format tour next moves east to Navi Mumbai for the three T20s beginning on Saturday.

Penrith 'respect' Jarome's big shift

The Panthers have responded to Jarome Luai's decision to join Wests Tigers from 2025 on a five-year deal, with the three-time defending premiers expressing their "disappointment" but ultimately "respecting Jarome's choice" as salary cap pressures force another star out of the club.

Luai announced on Wednesday that he was heading to the Tigers next year to link up with childhood hero Benji Marshall, who has had his biggest win as a coach as the club looks to bounce back from consecutive wooden spoons.

Leaving his hometown club, where he's won three titles and played alongside his best mates, was a brutal decision for Luai, but the chance to prove himself as the head chef was an opportunity he couldn't turn down.

Penrith wanted to keep him but couldn't match the Tigers' offer, with Luai joining other big names Matt Burton, Villiam Kikau, Api Koroisau and Stephen Crichton who have all moved on.

"As publicly stated previously, the club believes that as a three-time premiership player and international representative, Jarome has earned the right to explore the open market and although the club is disappointed by the outcome, it respects Jarome's choice," the Panthers posted.

Luai will return to training on Thursday but will remain sidelined as he recovers from shoulder surgery. It's unclear whether he'll be available for the trip to the UK for the World Club Challenge.

But he and the Panthers have stressed they are fully committed to working together to achieve an unprecedented fourth straight title. "We acknowledge that the situation is compounded by salary cap capacity due to the club's recent success," Panthers Rugby League chief executive Matt Cameron said.

Five-eighth quits Panthers to join boyhood hero

Penrith playmaker Jarome Luai's hugely successful partnership with Nathan Cleary (inset top) is drawing to a close after Wests Tigers coach Benji Marshall (inset bottom) lured Luai to the wooden spoons from 2025 on a massive five-year deal. Pictures: NRL Images

Top to bottom for Luai

Martin Gabor

Jarome Luai is hoping to win "five rings" at the Wests Tigers after signing a five-year deal worth a reported $6m.

The Panthers five-eighth has won three premierships in a row but will head to a team next year that has won the past two wooden spoons, which is one of the reasons he described it as the "toughest decision of my career and life".

Luai's announcement came after months of speculation as to where he would end up. Along with the Panthers and Bulldogs, his manager said on Wednesday several clubs had been interested in signing him.

Money was obviously a motivating factor for the 26-year-old, who has three children and got engaged to be married last week, but a chance to work with Tigers coach Benji Marshall was too good to ignore given the Kiwis star has been his idol since he dazzled the crowd with a stunning play in the 2005 decider.

"The obvious reason was that it was a great opportunity to provide for my family but also to create something for myself," Luai said. "I've had a great connection with Benji and we spoke about the future and what he sees in me."

"My first game of rugby league was that grand final."

"I was on a camping trip with my family and I got to see him do his thing out there and that inspired me."

"I've always been a big fan of Benji and the way that he holds himself. I got the opportunity to chuck the boots on with him in the Maori camp and I actually got to room with him which was pretty cool."

Signing Luai could be the turning point for a club that's been starved of success, with the Tigers last making the finals in 2011.

"We are super excited to announce the signing of Jarome for the 2025 season on a five-year deal," Marshall said.

"His experience as a genuine premiership-winning playmaker will be great for us and the future of our club. We love the way Jarome plays his footy and even better, he is a great person."

Luai now has the chance to be the chief playmaker after playing his entire career alongside champion halfback Nathan Cleary.

Panthers coach Ivan Cleary questioned whether Luai could handle that role when asked about it last year, although he showed he's more than capable after taking Samoa to the 2021 World Cup final.

"He wasn't lying," Luai said, confirming he's fully committed to helping Penrith win a fourth title. "At the end of the day, he was right because I haven't proven it on the biggest stage yet. That's what I want to prove to myself."

Luai used Wednesday's press conference to officially tell the Bulldogs they'd missed out, which he said had hurt because of his strong links to coach Cameron Ciraldo and best friend Stephen Crichton, who left Penrith to join the Bulldogs. "I've got a lot of brothers over there already and Ciraldo's like my second dad, so that was pretty tough to turn that away and walk this path alone and face this new challenge," Luai said.

Huntington tells of dark times with ACL injury curse

Erin Smith

Pain, surgeries, gruelling rehab process and extreme strain on your mental health – AFLW player Isabel Huntington says the impact of an ACL rupture doesn't get any less after the second or third time.

Huntington, 24, has torn her ACL three times in the space of six years. She is part of a growing club of elite women athletes who have had triple ACL injuries.

Joining the club this year alongside the AFLW player is Matildas fringe player Holly McNamara – who tore her ACL for the third time playing in the A-Leagues just days after being called into the national squad.

Sydney FC midfielder Taylor Ray is back in the A-Leagues this season after her third rupture.

Huntington said thoughts of giving up the game started to creep into her head during her second rehab stint and grew louder during her most recent injury. "There are certainly periods where you think you're not going to be able to get back or at the very least get back to the level that you were playing at, it's a pretty dark and lonely time throughout those periods," she said.

"Particularly the third one, not as many people have come back from three successfully so you have less and less inspiration in terms of athletes that have successfully done it."

"So there were doubts. But it's a pretty proud moment when you get to run out there again, with your fingers crossed it will be sweet from here on out."

Leading knee surgeon Dr Chris Vertullo said research had proven the female anatomy made women five to eight times more likely to suffer an ACL injury than men. "Studies take time but I think we need to invest hard in terms of research and getting to the bottom of it and finding some answers," Huntington said.

The Bulldogs turned Greater Western Sydney player tore her ACL for the first time when she was 17-years-old.

"My first one was in 2016, then I got back and in my second game back I did my other knee," Huntington said.

"It was a few years between my second and my third, which I did (January 2022)."

She needed an extended time off to recover from the third tear – taking 20 months, instead of the usual 10-12 months.

Huntington made her triumphant return to the field in September, after delaying several times for a niggle and her confidence to return.

Dealing with tearing her ACL three times has been tough for GWS AFLW player Isabel Huntington. Picture: Phil Hillyard
